Carrier Accident Is Costly

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—The U.S. Navy counted 24 dead, 85 injured and 17 missing today after a series of explosions and fire swept the flight deck of the nuclear aircraft carrier Enterprise on a training exercise.

The 85,000-ton carrier, world's biggest warship, made it back to port Tuesday under her own power from the scene of the disaster 75 miles southwest of Honolulu.

A Navy source first attributed the initial explosion to a bomb falling from an airplane landing on the carrier. Later this was officially retracted and a Navy spokesman stated that the cause of the blasts was unknown and under investigation.

The ship's nuclear power plant was not affected.

Area Men Serve On Carrier

At least two area servicemen were aboard the U.S.S. Enterprise when the nuclear carrier was raked by fire and explosion Tuesday. They are HM3 James L. Bartlett, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bartlett, Sr., 1004 South Murray and John Michael Hare, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hare, Lincoln. No word had been received Wednesday by either family regarding the two sailors.

Planes from the Enterprise were taking part in an exercise Tuesday morning at Kahoolawe, an uninhabited island used as a bombing range, pending redeployment to the Western Pacific. It has been in action off Vietnam several times.

The Enterprise, known to her 5,000 men as the "Big E", had launched one flight of planes and was preparing to send off a second group armed with live bombs and rockets.

Sailors on the flight deck said the first explosion apparently occurred in or near an F4 Phantom jet parked about 75 feet from the stern of the ship.

"I was walking forward on the flight deck when the first explosion knocked me down," said Petty Officer Billy Hawk, 25, of Austin, Tex. "I picked myself up, ran to a fire station and started getting out gear.

"A fire unit went by me into the scene. There was another explosion and the man who had the end of the fire hose wasn't there any more."

At a dockside news conference following the arrival of the Enterprise, Navy officials said there were at least 10 explosions. Most of the missing apparently were blown off the deck into the sea.

"I saw people physically blown out of the area where the fire started and get up and go back in," said Chief Warrant Officer Jim Helten, 36, of San Diego, Calif. "There was multitudes of heroism."

When the fire was finally brought under control, nearly three hours after it began, Helten found that a piece of metal had been blown into his right leg. His injury was not serious.

"I heard the first explosion and saw a big ball of flame," said Larry Upchurch, 25, of Dallas, Tex., a flight deck chief. "I started toward the area and was blown down by the second explosion."

First Orbital Transfer May Be Goal of Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Four rookie Soviet cosmonauts, riding Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5, began maneuvering in space today for perhaps the world's first crew transfer in orbit.

A telecast from aboard Soyuz 5 reported about an hour after its launching today that the "splendid" craft was functioning normally and the three-man crew was feeling fine.

Earlier cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov, flying alone in Soyuz 4, reported all was well aboard his craft. Shatalov was launched about 24 hours before his companion ship.

There were unconfirmed reports in Moscow that the two ships would link up, and one of the men from Soyuz 5 would climb aboard Soyuz 4. As usual, space officials kept silent on plans for the four-man mission.

The cosmonaut transfer would give the Soviets another "first" in space, and also would mark the first time they matched the U. S. feat of manned docking in orbit.

Ship commander Boris Volynov reported in the telecast from Soyuz 5 that he and his two fellow crewmen withstood the launch "very well" and had begun unspecified "joint experiments" with Shatalov's craft.

The telecast, relayed by videotape on Moscow television, showed Volynov and research engineer Yevgeny Khrunov smiling and relaxing in the cabin. The third man aboard, Alexei Yeliseyev, was not within camera range and might have been in the spacecraft's other compartment.

This is the first time since June 1963 that the Soviet Union has attempted a space feat involving two manned ships. It is also the first Soviet mission with four cosmonauts in orbit simultaneously.

Tass said Soyuz 5 was launched at 2:14 a.m. EST. So-

Marines Encounter First Red Attack

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Marines participating in an 8,200-man amphibious operation on the Batangan Peninsula got their first taste of action today as they tightened their noose on a Viet Cong stronghold 340 miles northeast of Saigon.

Rear Adm. W. W. Behrens Jr. of Harrisburg, Pa., reported the Leathernecks repulsed an enemy attempt to break out of the cordon, suffering two dead and seven wounded in a fierce exchange of small arms fire. Enemy casualties were not known.

Earlier, four Viet Cong were killed in another small skirmish and two guerrilla soldiers defected to the Americans, said Behrens. He also reported the Marines destroyed several tunnel complexes, captured 600 pounds of rice, corn and flour, and rounded up 700 suspects for interrogation by a South Vietnamese pacification team.

Behrens said the aim is to separate the peninsula's Viet Cong "activists" from the general population, estimated between 5,000 and 10,000.

Two Marine battalions swept ashore on Batangan Monday in what the U. S. Navy said was the biggest seaborne assault since the 1950 Inchon landing of the Korean War. About 5,200 troops of the U. S. Americal Division and the South Vietnamese 2nd Infantry Division joined up with the 3,000 Leathernecks Tuesday.

Navy patrol boats have ringed the peninsula, sealing off the enemy's last escape routes as the ground troops push seaward. They hope to trap an estimated 800 North Vietnamese regulars and an unknown number of Viet Cong guerrillas.

"We want to minimize Viet Cong influence in the area and neutralize his efforts," said Behrens. "We will do everything in our power during this operation to protect the villager, and we intend to offer him enough support to remove his fear of Viet Cong domination."

Infantry units in the cordon reported encountering only sporadic sniper fire.

Closer to Saigon, the allies claimed killing 306 enemy in five engagements Tuesday east, west and south of the capital.

Messages Of Sorrow At Death

The Missouri State Senate adopted a resolution Tuesday expressing sorrow at the death of D. Kelly Scruton of The Democrat-Capital.

Telegrams and letters continue to be received from the many friends of Mr. Scruton and his wife. Some of them follow:

Sen. Stuart Symington, who was at the inauguration Monday with Mr. Scruton, expressed his sympathies in a telegram Tuesday. It reads:

"In the death of Kelly Scruton, Mrs. Symington and I have lost an old and beloved friend; and Sedalia and Missouri have lost an enthusiastic supporter for all that is good for his home community and our state.

"We join with Mr. Scruton's host of friends all over the country in deepest sympathy to his wife and his family."

Your great loss was indeed a shock to us all. Kelly's wonderful jovial spirit will always be remembered. Peggy joins me in extending our heartfelt sympathies at this hour of your need sincerely.

David Dear, President
Dear Publications and Radio
Washington, D.C.

I am sure you know how I feel. Cal and I are thinking of you.

Will Davis, Chairman,
Missouri State Tourism Commission

Dorothy and I are shocked and saddened to hear about the death of Kelly. He was an outstanding newspaper man and a dear personal friend. We send our deep sympathy and love to you and your family.

Frank Gorrie,
Retired Manager

Title I School Program In Sedalia is Commended

Sedalia is one of three cities in the United States mentioned in a booklet entitled, "Profiles in Quality Education," which outlines the programs sponsored by the school system and commends the system here for its extended use of school facilities.

The booklet, published by the U.S. Office of Education, was presented to the Board of Education by Dr. T.J. Norris, superintendant of schools, at its meeting Tuesday night. The booklet outlines the programs sponsored by 150 schools throughout the nation in various categories.

Monroe, Mich., and Kona, Hawaii, were the other two cities commended in the booklet, which contained outstanding examples of federal Title I projects. Sedalia was the second of the three cities listed.

The board voted to send a letter of recognition to Harry Browder, director of federal programs, for his work in federal programs sponsored by the Sedalia school system.

The following facts were listed in the booklet about the evening study centers in Sedalia:

Started in October, 1966; total cost in 1967-68 was $10,964; nine teachers participated in the program along with 400 public and 40 non-public school students.

Four schools in low income areas provided supervised study centers and recreational activities two and three nights a week for students. Included in the program were students in the fourth through seventh grades who attended one hour study halls under the tutoring of a qualified teacher.

Included in the program were classes on arts and crafts, remedial reading, and math. A reference library was set up in each study center for use by the students, the booklet noted.

In regular business, $1,890 contract with School Transportation, Inc., for transportation for students during the 1969-70 school year was approved.

The following were also approved or accepted by the board: the resignation of Rose Ann Ressel, first grade teacher at Heber U. Hunt School effective Feb. 1; the resignation of Henry Perkins, custodian at Washington School; appointment of Andrew Barker effective Jan. 27 to replace Thomas Buhrkuhl, industrial arts teacher at Smith-Cotton, who was drafted into the Army, and payment of bills amounting to $31,984.48.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has advised the Democratic majorities of House and Senate to give a sympathetic hearing to President-elect Nixon's program but to push ahead resolutely with legislation for social reforms.

Johnson, who sends a $195.3 billion budget to Congress today, said in a sentimental farewell to the nation Tuesday night that the prospects for peace in Vietnam are better now than they have been in the four years since Hanoi sent regular troops into the South.

But Vietnam was quickly passed over in Johnson's 44-minute final report on the State of the Union, a prosperous nation that sorely needs, he said, to repair urban blight, end racial discrimination, improve educational opportunities and guarantee the safety of its streets.

While reminiscenses of his 38-year attachment to Capitol Hill were the order of the night during his nationally televised and broadcast sentiment at a joint session of Congress, Johnson had some cogent advice to his fellow Democrats and supporters who led the applause that interrupted his speech 53 times.

At the end Johnson urged the national bipartisanship that he practiced as Senate majority leader when Dwight D. Eisenhower was president but which the Republicans gave him on a hit-and-miss basis.

"President-elect Nixon will need your understanding, just as I did," he told his former colleagues of the Capitol. "He is entitled to have it. The burdens he will bear will be borne for all of us. Each of us should try not to increase them for the sake of narrow personal or partisan advantage."

But, having said that, Johnson went on to outline to his Democratic listerners—and such Republicans as might take note—a broad program of social advancement calculated to write a party record for the 1970 congressional elections and a challenge to Nixon's re-election in 1972.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, potential top contenders for the 1972 nomination, listened intently to Johnson's advice. On the dais, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, last year's presidential nominee, nodded his approval and grinned broadly as the President made his points.

Johnson, who was said to have consulted Nixon on the major points of his speech, called for:

—A 13 per cent over-all increase in Social Security benefits, with attendant increases in payroll deducations. During the campaign Nixon called for linking benefit increases with the cost of living.

V. M. Martin Takes Life With Pistol

Verrel M. Martin, 48, 2415 Golf, died of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound early Wednesday morning.

The body was first discovered by Billy Finlay, Route 1, who was enroute to Sedalia, about 7:20 a.m. Finlay contacted Sedalia police who, with Deputy Sheriff Donald Stratton, investigated.

Martin was found a few feet from 32nd street on the southwest corner of a yard behind his home. A 9 m.m. German luger automatic pistol was found near the body. It was identified by relatives as belonging to Martin, police said.

One shot had been fired from the gun, and six cartridges remained in the magazine, with one in the chamber.

Preliminary investigation indicated the bullet entered the rear part of the head and exited through the forehead, police said. The shooting apparently occurred about 5 a.m.

Dr. J.M. Roderman, deputy Pettis County coroner, said death was due to an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Martin had been active in civic affairs and business in Sedalia for many years.

At the time of his death, he was an instructor of world history and citizenship at Smith-Cotton High School, where he had been employed since completing his education at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

Survivors include his wife, Mary, of the home; a son, John, and a daughter, Martha; and several grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

The body is at the McLaughlin Funeral Home.

Area Projects Are Included With Budget

The president's budget for the fiscal year 1970 includes $11,025,000 for construction and studies of conservation projects in this area, according to information received by The Democrat-Capital Wednesday, from Senators Stuart Symington, Thomas F. Eagleton and Representative William J. Randall.

The projects include $6,500,000 for construction on Kaysinger Bluff Reservoir; $5,000,000 for construction on Stockton Reservoir; $10,000 for study of the Osage River, and $15,000 for continuing study of the Flat Creek area near Sedalia.

Rites are Set For Friday

Funeral services for D. Kelly Scruton, Sedalia newspaperman, who died Monday night during the inaugural ball in the Capitol building at Jefferson City, will be held at Calvary Episcopal Church at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

The Rev. William E. Lusk, pastor, will officiate.

Active pallbearers will be six honorary colonels of the governor's staff: Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, W.C. Askew, William C. Hopkins, John R. Van Dyne, Dr. Ira M. White and Jason Ott.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Nixon to Retain Surtax Until Repeal Permitted

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla (AP)—President-elect Nixon, about to take charge of a war-swollen federal budget, has pledged to support President Johnson's recommendation that the 10 per cent income surtax be continued — until "the facts we face" permit repeal.
mit repeal.

"It remains my conviction that the surcharge should end as soon as requirements for the war, the budget outlook and economic conditions will permit," Nixon said Tuesday night. "It is my understanding that President Johnson shares this same view."

His understanding was carefully orchestrated.

The words Nixon used in a statement to describe his position, and those Johnson included in his farewell State of the Union message were virtually identical.

Said Nixon:

". . . Until the new administration and the Congress can ascertain that the facts we face justify permitting the surtax to expire or to be reduced, I will support the President's suggestion that the surcharge be continued."

And Johnson, before a joint meeting of Congress:

"The President-elect has concluded that—until his administration and the Congress can ascertain that the facts justify permitting the surtax to expire or to be reduced—he will support my recommendation that it be continued."

Nixon and Johnson discussed the tax in a telephone conversation Sunday, and the President clearly received his successor's endorsement at that time.

Nixon's full statement:

"It remains my conviction that the surcharge should end as soon as requirements for the war, the budget outlook and economic conditions will permit. It is my understanding that President Johnson shares this same view.

"However, until the new administration and the Congress can ascertain that the facts we face justify permitting the surtax to expire or to be reduced, I will support the President's suggestion that the surcharge be continued."

Since his election, Nixon and his advisers had said repeatedly the tax should be repealed as soon as economic and budget conditions would permit.

As a campaigner, Nixon at one point said flatly he wanted the $15 billion levy to end on June 30, when it is due to expire unless Congress acts.

But generally, he linked its elimination with an end to the financial burdens of the Vietnam war. In Chicago, for example, on Sept. 4, Nixon said:

"I think that once the war is ended we should get rid of the surtax. It is a war tax and it should be ended because I think the tax level in this country rather than going up should be reduced."

The tax statement was Nixon's only public business Tuesday—and it was prepared even before he flew to Key Biscayne Monday night.

Progress Section Coming

It is now apparent that 1968 was something of a watershed year for Sedalia, with great strides being made in business, education, the arts and local government.

A survey of Progress '68 in Sedalia will be published in The Democrat-Capital's annual Progress Section, coming this Sunday.

Watch for this important contribution to the continuing story of a community on the move.

Another Downtown Fire Sends Losses Up Again

The third major fire in downtown Sedalia in less than two months Wednesday morning destroyed the Chez When Cocktail Lounge, 121 East Third, doing an estimated $10,000 damage to the building, and $25,000 to the contents.

Cause of the fire was listed by the Sedalia Fire Department as probable faulty electric wiring.

The fire apparently was first discovered about 2 a.m. by Don Petree, who lives in an apartment in the top floor of the building.

It was a busy night for local firemen. They received five calls, including the one to the Chez When, and one to the E. W. Thompson farm just west of the Thompson Hills Shopping Center.

That call came in at 7:38 p.m. and firemen were able to send only one truck to the scene since another had responded to a call from 620 Wagner Drive about seven minutes earlier.

The fire on the Thompson property destroyed a barn and 500 tons of hay, valued at $20 a ton. Total loss at the farm was set at $15,000, with $5,000 damage to the building.

The Chez When cocktail lounge was located in the basement of the building and the fire department said the blaze was confined to that section and a small portion of the ground floor.

Sedalia Fire Chief Emmett Vaught said the fire department used two pumper trucks and a ladder truck to fight the fire.

Lounge Destroyed

Sedalia firemen emerge from the Chez When Cocktail Lounge, 121 East Third, which was destroyed by fire about 2 a.m. Wednesday. It was the third major fire in the downtown Sedalia area this year and damage done by the fires in that short span of time has exceeded yearly totals for many years, according to Fire Chief Emmett Vaught. Effects of Paris Talks Noted on Battlefield

Editor's Note — It is almost a year since the enemy's biggest blow struck in Vietnam, the Tet offensive that tore into cities, towns and military installations. Today the war goes on but the feeling is far different from that of a year ago. This appraisal of the changes, and the prospects, is by an AP reporter who has covered the war for six years. To write it he interviewed scores of officials and observers, visiting provinces from one end of South Vietnam to the other.

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — This strangest of wars is moving toward another turning point. There is a general feeling that a cutback in U.S. forces is coming, but lack of agreement on what it will mean.

Many see the tide of war running in favor of the allies now. Others believe this view is valid only if the political eddies swirling about the war are ignored. And the enemy retains a potential to upset the best laid plans.

On the surface, the time to begin leaving seems nearer than at any period since the first U.S. combat troops arrived nearly four years ago.

Enemy forces appear in disarray after a year of vast bloodletting. Land and population swallowed up in last February's Tet offensive are being recovered in huge slices by minimal forces. Allied casualties are down.

Yet there is doubt that these things point toward an end to the fighting. Enemy forces are still massed on the borders, and a Frenchman who fought in the first Indochina war observes:

Many knowledgeable Americans and Vietnamese suggest the military picture reflects international political developments late in 1968, particularly those surrounding the halt of U.S. bombing against North Vietnam.

These people detect an obvious pattern of disengagement of major enemy units, a deliberate slackening in tempo. They feel this was less the result of allied military efforts on the ground than a direct response to the Johnson administration's eagerness to get the Vietnam talks started, an eagerness indicated by the November bombing halt and apparent American consent for the Viet Cong to participate in Paris talks, one way or another.

There is recurring talk about some kind of package plan to be presented to the Nixon administration by the Vietnamese government, possibly involving the withdrawal of 20,000 - 50,000 U.S. troops. "It is no longer a question of pulling out troops," one U.S. official says. "The questions now are when and how many?"

One critic believes that the American troop commitment of more than 500,000 men could be cut by one-third, and yet increase the performance by 25 per cent. He asserts that the layering of headquarters elements, the comparitively soft living in rear areas, has led to a multiplicity of facilities.

He believes also that the U.S. commitment can be reduced without increasing pressure on the Vietnamese army.

Those who favor an American cutback believe Vietnam looks like an interminable, open-ended, nonproductive commitment to most Americans.

A cutback in forces would alleviate that condition, they believe, by giving a goal.

But once the initial cuts were made, the rest would come slow.

Most knowledgeable Americans say that if the United States decides to fight and not talk in Vietnam, U.S. troops can be thinned to a minimum of 200,000 within four years, and 100,000 within 10 years, with those 100,000 based here indefinitely.

And American dead, which in 1968 doubled the total of dead of all previous years in Vietnam to 30,551 by year's end, could be expected to continue but in diminished proportions.

Even with the best prospects, a complete peace with both sides agreeing to withdraw, and all terms okayed, it would take 12 to 18 months for all American units to move out of Vietnam in an orderly fashion, experts in the logistics field say.

That America can diminish her efforts in the war is a proposition based on two assumptions — that the Vietnamese army will improve, and that the Hanoi-led armies will disintegrate.

Many senior Americans have expressed belief that the Vietnamese armed forces are getting better, and observations in various sections bear this out. But it is the transformation of a once nearly defeated army to an improving army, not yet to a winning army, that seems to be taking place. Important visitors still have to be flown 400 miles to Hue to see a good Vietnamese division, the 1st, in action. And this division has fought all year with the help of three American divisions — the 101st and the 1st Cavalry Divisions, and the 3rd Marine Division — using their massive firepower and air support.

The three most doubtful Vietnamese divisions in the country — the 5th, 18th and the 25th — still sleep at Saigon's doorstep, reluctant to participate in combined operations with American units, not particularly anxious to mix with the Viet Cong or change the status quo.

Countrywide, American advisers report three large areas of improvement in the Vietnamese armed forces. The non-3 P.M. siesta is no longer standard in the field. Commanders seem imbued with a greater urge to make decisions, now that they have found that often they are usurped in operations by eager commanders of American units. This has improved staff work.

There is some improvement in night operations. The M16 rifle has improved morale. The Vietnamese soldier is now at equal footing with the Viet Cong who carries an AK47.

Many obvious failings of the Vietnamese army could seemingly be easily rectified. The 7th division regiment that guards the Kien Hoa province capital of Ben Tre has no regular barracks. The troops returning from operations bed down on doorsteps of private homes or in the branches of trees.

Uniforms are still often ragged, and the food allowance equal to 20 cents a day buys little meat. "The Viet Cong we kill and capture are bigger and fatter than us because they eat more than we do," a thin junior officer told me during a recent Kien Hoa operation.

Desertions remain a chronic problem with an estimated net loss of 60,000 men in 1968 despite stiff penalties. The irregular leave, low pay and difficult transportation home outwits strenuous attempts to cut back desertion.

The apparent exodus of enemy main forces from all but the embattled Que Son Valley region south of Da Nang has elated senior Americans who have redirected American troops to the routing out of peasant couriers, sympathizers and others who aid the Viet Cong in the hundreds of formerly contested hamlets now included in new pacification projects.

"This is the best opportunity we have had since 1961 to really clean up the VC," one American of long experience noted.

Vietnamese observers in and out of the Government see the current situation as less an opportunity than a threat. They think the whole power base of the Saigon government is imperiled not by an enemy slashing down on the cities, as happened last February, but by a more compliant adversary offering a war-weary America a way out through the Paris peace talks.

"We fear most what we desire most: peace," an elderly Vietnamese intellectual, once a confidante of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, commented. "We fear peace because it will put us in an impossible situation. Or maybe we have just become too used to war."

The Vietnamese government has tried to make it clear it wants no part of peace talks that might risk political concessions and curtail American military and monetary protection.

The Vietnamese tend to look at the Viet Cong as an enemy less interested in immediate military victory than in outlasting the American military challenge.

An undecided war that continued at an impasse as it does now, the Vietnamese believe, could only benefit the Viet Cong and discredit the United States.

They see the Tet offensive less as a massive bloodletting that killed 40,000 people in 10 days, than as the big battle, the attempted "new Dien Bien Phu" that crystallized American distaste for the war. A senior Communist defector told his captors, "With the Tet offensive, you lost the war in 128 countries around the world. You do not understand political and psychological warfare. It does not matter to the Communists whether a battalion is beaten in the field or taken out by a political decision. They will wait now for the political decision."

The Vietnamese government is well aware of Washington desires for an American disengagement. President Nguyen Van Thieu told a recent visitor he would accept without complaint an American pullout of 50,000 to 100,000 men immediate ly to cool the American political climate.

This figure has been suggested by other senior Americans as not only possible but beneficial, as indicated above. Only rear and support units would be included, not combat troops. But neither the Vietnamese nor the Americans can name anywhere in Vietnam, even now while the war is quiet, where Vietnamese forces could adequately replace Americans immediately.

"They can do much more," one senior American said. "To put it brutally, the Saigon government has been taking only one tenth of the dead the Communists have been taking, yet they control one third of the population when you lump the two Vietnams together. If the Communists can continue taking so many dead, maybe the Saigon government could put more into the fight."

How many dead can the foe take? The question fascinates American commanders. By official Vietnamese tabulation, 191,307 of the enemy fell last year. The real body count may be less, but there is little doubt that more than 100,000 died in the streets of Saigon, the back alleys of Da Nang, in the grounds of the American Embassy, in fruitless attacks on American firebases and under the B52 bomb.

"The NVA (North Vietnamese) have literally thrown themselves to their deaths," a brigade commander commented. "The war in 1968 became a much easier one for Americans and the Vietnamese to fight."

By emerging from jungles and swamps, the main forces gave up a military superiority that once promised survival. Attrition became effective, American analysts believe, with the constant loss of small-unit leadership to allied guns, lowering the general standard of fighting.

Even so, formidable enemy forces have again massed along the borders, possibly with a bigger order of battle than during last Tet, and certainly with newer equipment and well trained recruits.

"They are probably waiting for the opportune time to hit," a senior American officer commented — an event expected later this year, launched either to force home a point after the peace talks get moving, or launch fullscale war again if they collapse.

The allied forces are in a much better position this year to forestall a renewed enemy offensive than they were 12 months ago. Seventy per cent of the enemy's estimated 150,000-man force is North Vietnamese who do not enjoy the same degree of penetration into the Vietnamese establishment that the local Viet Cong has.

The enemy forces, however, have proved expert at seizing local initiative. They are masters of surprise diversion, and are imaginative and bold in executivng military strikes. "We have continually overestimated the capacity of the enemy, and have underestimated his imagination and daring," an American long a Vietnam observer commented.

Given those qualities, the enemy forces can in the event of a renewed offensive, can be expected to break through the outer line of allied defenses and plunge to population centers. This could tear to shreds the "accelerated pacification" program that began as a land-grabbing technique before Christmas when a permanent ceasefire was thought possible, and looks sas if it would be the basis for the 1969 pacification program.

"Accelerated pacification is an optical illusion anyway, just a card to play at the negotiating table," an American provincial adviser said. "We are spread too thin. We are filling the vacuum, but this is only valid as long as the enemy main forces stay out. If they come back they'll walk all over us."

This view may be overly somber, particularly in view of the proven superiority of allied firepower that has cut down the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese in thousands.

Most authorities in Vietnam, however, feel that the Communist- led forces will continue to attempt to pound their way into power if the Paris talks fail to reach some kind of settlement.

Mrs. J. W. Boger presented the program the topic of which was "God Gave It, Let's Save It." Mrs. Boger told of the beauties of different regions of the country and of the many natural beauties that are being destroyed by man. Mrs. Charles Walkup and Mrs. Hugh Janes assisted her in giving the program.

Awards were received by Mrs. P. C. Owen and Mrs. Ray Lippard for exhibits in using natural materials and to Mrs. Lippard in horticulture for decorative planters.

Wants to Purchase State's Schools

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Somebody wants to buy California's state schools, all 19 of 'em.

The idea, says Director Andrew R. Lolli of the state General Services Department, is to lease them back to the state. California would get a big wad of cash and the investor would get a steady income.

The offer for the nine University of California campuses and 19 state college campuses is being looked into on an exploratory basis, Lolli said.

He declined to identify the buyer or say how many millions or billions were involved.

"As far as money is concerned," Lolli said, "there is no problem. The buyer painted a very rosy picture."

New Life For Convicted Spy

NEW YORK (AP)—Morton Sobell, released from prison Tuesday after serving 17 years for conspiring to sell atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, has returned home and says he has "a lot of living to do."

Sobell, 52, stepped out of the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., Tuesday afternoon, hours after the U.S. Court of Appeals in Manhattan ordered him freed. He took a bus to New York City to rejoin his family.

"I have a lot of living to do and I'm going back to school," Sobell said as he arrived, clad in what prison officials call "dress-out clothing"—a gray suit,white shirt and tie.

Meeting Sobell at the bus station were his wife Helen, 51; their son Mark, 19; their daughter, Mrs. Sydney Clemens, 29; and Sobell's mother Rose, 74.

Mrs. Sobell said she had heard of her husband's imminent release on the radio and called to tell him. She said he did not know until her phone call. She said her husband wanted to study engineering.

Morton Sobell

Mark, a computer programmer with shoulder-length hair, said, when told of the release, "It's about time they let him go because he is innocent."

Sobell, a radar expert, was convicted along with Julius and Ethel Rosenberg who were executed in June 1953. The Rosenbergs were convicted of committing wartime espionage as well as conspiracy.

Although sectenced to the maximum term, Sobell had been due for release Aug. 24 because of good behavior. The appeals unit ruled he should be credited with 7½ months he spent in jail for inability to post $100,000 bail prior to sentencing in 1951 and thus enabled the earlier release.

Specifically, Sobell was convicted of conspiring to commit espionage by transmitting to the Soviet Union documents, writings, sketches, notes and information related to national defense.

He was accused of helping the Rosenbergs recruit others into a spy ring led by Klaus Fuchs, a British scientist, and Harry Gold, a Philadelphia biochemist, during World War II.

More than a dozen attempts were made to obtain freedom for Sobell. Mrs. Sobell estimated they cost more than $1 million.

The Committee to Secure Justice for Morton Sobell in New York City claimed he was a victim of a frameup.

Italian Fashions Are Bold

Those who favor bare skin form quite a colony. Tiziani promises lots on show, only lightly veiled by the flimsiest of sheers. Another advocate of the see-through look is Heinz Riva, with transparent evening gowns worn over form-fitting pants and skimpy bras. From the same house are city suits accompanied by nothing more than a matching bra in place of the usual blouse.

At Ognibene-Zendman, a black cotton trouser suit will feature daring cutouts.

"My new collection will be just a little frivolous," says Valentino, Italy's big name fashion designer.

The showings will run to Jan. 23, with 34 fashion houses presenting their latest creations. Menswear also will be on view as well as accessories, luggage and other fashion goodies.

Valentino, Mila Schon, Fabiani, Forquet and Capucci are just a few of the star-studded names on the seven-day program.

Valentino reveals that he will show a lighthearted line but refuses to elaborate. It is certain that the many wealthy women who are his clients will be vying with one another to snap up his "frivolities."

Most designers report they will show a fairly fitted line with plenty of emphasis on the waist. Belts will be important although the fad for the chain variety seems to be on the wane.

There will be plenty of pants. Now considered as much a part of the female wardrobe as coats or dresses, they will be shown for day and evening, teamed with hip-length jackets or flaring tunics.

HOUSTONIA — Engineman 3-C Ronald L. Bakert, USN, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bakert, Houstonia, is home on a 17-day leave before departing, Jan. 22, for his second tour of duty in Vietnam. He graduated from Northwest High School in 1966.

Slow Start In the Sale Of New Cars

DETROIT (AP)—U.S. auto sales were down almost two per cent in the first 10 days of 1969 compared to the same period a year ago.

Only a sharp gain by General Motors' Chevrolet division prevented a much greater sales drop-off in the Jan. 1 to Jan. 10 period.

Total sales of the four major American auto makers were 178,959 in the first 10 days of 1969, compared to 181,441 a year ago.

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler were almost even in the loss column, as Ford dropped from 56,222 in 1968 to 52,629 units in 1969 while Chrysler fell from 29,027 to 25,483.

General Motors' sales were up 4,602 to 97,053 units, with the Chevrolet increase from 42,263 to 47,238 accountinf for more than the corporate difference.

Democratic Chairman Takes Over Party Reins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred Harris shouldered the dual burdens of U. S. senator and Democratic national chairman today and set out in pursuit of party strength, $9 million and—just possibly—a run at the White House.

The 38-year-old son of an Oklahoma sharecropper, who rose in four years to membership in the Senate Establishment, was unanimously elected party chairman Tuesday at a meeting of the national committee.

His selection to succeed the resigning Lawrence F. O'Brien had been a foregone conclusion since Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, as titular head of the party, publicly gave Harris his support over the weekend.

"We must have support from all representative groups of Americans," Harris told the committee. "That will be one of our first tasks—to meet our first test in the congressional elections of 1970."

"Look to the suburbs!" was O'Brien's departing advice. "That's where many of our Democrats have gone."

Humphrey urged the committee to press for massive electoral reforms and—with an obvious eye on the party's $9 million deficit— stressed revision of campaign spending laws.

He tabbed Harris a "young, promising" prospect for the 1972 presidential nomination—a possibility that could pit Humphrey against a man who was his Senate protege and co-captain of his unsuccessful 1968 campaign.

Although Harris will pick a fulltime executive director, both will need considerable energy to overcome Democratic vulnerability in 1970 when they have 25 Senate seats at stake and must protect their House majority.

Fires In City

Firemen made three runs Tuesday afternoon to extinguish grass fires. They went to the 600 block of East Boonville at 12:11 p.m.; and 522 East Saline at 2:51 p.m. and 20th and Grand at 3:46 p.m. No damage resulted from any of the fires.

One booster line was used to extinguish a grass fire at 1420 North Osage at 6:05 Tuesday. Cause of the fire was attributed to nearby burning trash.

Sedalia firemen were called to the LeRoy Kreissler residence, 1611 Wagner, at 7:31 p.m. Tuesday. Lint on a furnace caused smoke to fill the house, according to the department. There was no fire and no damage was listed.

Marriage License

Earl Francis Perkins, 20th and Clarendon Road, and Sharon Kay Eye, 1722 South Grand.

Police Report

Tom Moriarity reported to police someone pried the lock off a door at the Mobile Oil Co., 609 East Boradway, sometime Monday night and ransacked a desk in the office. Nothing was reported missing.

Following their investigation at the Mobile bulk plant Sgt. Franklin and Officer Guymon started checking other bulk plants in the area and discovered an attempted break-in at the Texaco Oil Co., 629 East Broadway. A lock on the building had been pried on but apparently entry was not gained.

Circuit Court

Ellen Louise Bohrer, Belton, Mo., entered a plea of guilty in Circuit Court Tuesday to state complaints charging her with carrying a concealed weapon and carrying a concealed weapon in Circuit Court Jan. 6, and was sentenced to serve 120 days in the Saline County jail.

Robert Wesner was appointed by the court as her attorney. The state's case was handled by Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler.

The guilty plea was entered shortly after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court, where the case was bound over to Circuit Court.

Accidents

The 200 block of West 16th was the scene of a two-car accident at 6:42 p.m. Tuesday. A 1967 Ford pickup, driven east on 16th by Roy E. Lang, 51, Route 3, and a 1964 Chevrolet, also driven east on 16th by George Ivan Purvis, 57, Gravois Mills, collided.

A 1965 Ford driven north on Lamine by Linda J. Clark, 17, 2401 South Grand, and a 1957 Chevrolet driven west on Ninth by William F. Poindexter, 17, 509 North Lamine, were involved in an accident at Ninth and Lamine at 3:27 p.m. Tuesday.

The left side of the Ford was damaged in the accident.

Police Court

Dennis Wayne Carson, 1104 East Fifth, careless and imprudent driving, pleaded innocent but was found guilty and fined $10. He was given a stay on the fine.

George E. Bryant, 1105 East Broadway, careless and imprudent driving, pleaded innocent and the case was dismissed.

James C. Keeler, Marshall, loud and unnecessary noise with a motor vehicle, pleaded guilty and was fined $5; illegal possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

Jesse J. Mascarenaz, 1218 South Ohio, driving 50 miles an hour in a 40-mile-an-hour zone, forfeited a $10 bond.

STAUBACH STARS

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Staubach, who won the 1963 Heisman trophy as Navy's quarterback, is still in there pitching. Roger threw four touchdown passes as the Pensacola Navy team beat Youngstown State University 58-38.

Reports are that Staubach will join the Dallas Cowboys for the 1969 football season.

Fire

extinguished, Vaught said, firemen called on another truck from the station to pump water, measured at about four feet deep, out of the basement of the building.

Firemen laid four lines in all, using two straight lines and two "cellar nozzles" during the two-hour battle against the flames. The cellar nozzles are devices which rotate automatically to spray a large area with water.

As in past occasions, the Salvation Army was on the scene providing coffee and other refreshments.

Firemen finally left the building about 6 a.m. after checking for possible new flare-ups from smoldering embers.

According to Vaught's estimates, fires in the last two weeks caused damage estimated at $556,500 — more than any other annual damage total in Vaught's memory.

Since last Dec. 1, Vaught said, the total damage estimates from fires in the city has been $607,500.

Sedalia police assisted the fire department during the Chez When blaze, Vaught said, by calling out off-duty firemen. Vaught also said that Vernon Ditton, superintendent of the Street and Alley Department, was at the scene to barricade streets.

—Reorganization and revitalization of the antipoverty program, continuing it "until we have broken the back of poverty in our land."

—Implementation of the Fair Housing act and extension of provisions of the Voting Rights Act.

—A full $300 million appropriation to carry out the Safe Streets Act and legisation to require the licensing and registration of firearms.

—An increase in congressional salaries from the present $30,000 a year to $42,500.

As forecast, Johnson also asked for continuance of the 10 per cent income surtax to permit the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to show a $3.4 billion surplus.

The President said he and Nixon agreed that the tax ought to end as soon as possible.

Nixon said in a statement that the tax should end "as soon as requirements for the war, the budget outlook and economic conditions will permit," and added:

"However, until the new administration and the Congress can ascertain that the facts we face justify permitting the surtax to expire or to be reduced, I will support the President's suggestion that the surcharge be continued."

Johnson's charter for Democratic action in Congress while the party is out of power at the White House drew favorable reaction from his party's leaders.

House Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma called it a "forthright statement of both the nation's problems and its assets, its strengths and its weakness."

Kennedy, newly-elected Democratic whip of the Senate, said there is "a heavy responsibility on the Senate "and the House to carry forward Democratic programs for the good of all Americans."

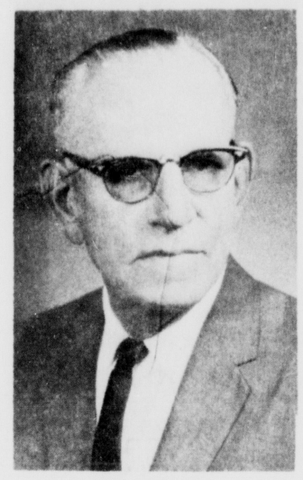

Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., said Johnson had charted "a progressive course for his nation," but added that he didn't agree with continuance of the surtax and some other proposals.

Muskie, the 1968 Democratic vice presidential candidate, said that Johnson had made an honest estimate of what the country needs to do.

Some Republicans were complimentary; others were not.

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who has been chummy with Johnson, called it a fine speech and added that beyond that "I'm inarticulate."

Mehl, Rocke To Board Positions

Frank Mehl

Robert Rocke

Frank Mehl and Robert L. Rocke were elected to the board of directors of the Sedalia Bank & Trust Company for the first time by action of the bank's stockholders at the annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Other board members re-elected by the same action were: Jason V. Ott, James Griffin, W.G. Whitaker, J.J. Kniest, Louis Hughes, Jr., T.W. Cloney, Philip McLaughlin, Donald Barnes, Bruce Claycomb and K.U. Love.

Officers elected were: Jason V. Ott, chairman of the board; John J. Kniest, president; Louis Hughes, Jr., executive vice president and trust officer; Frank Mehl, vice president, cashier secretary, assistant trust officer and security officer; Gene Strelow, vice president; Robert L. Rocke, vice president; Mrs. Juanita Hood, assistant vice president, assistant cashier and assistant secretary and Mrs. Mary Lou Alexander, assistant cashier.

Mehl has been with the bank since it was organized and chartered in 1932. He started his banking career with the Sedalia Trust Company, Fourth and Ohio, which later became the banking premises of the Sedalia Bank & Trust Company. He and his wife reside at 236 South Grand.

Rocke joined the bank in 1966 when he came here from Independence, Kan., where he was employed by the Independence State Bank. He and his wife reside at 1003 Leone. They are the parents of three sons.

yuz 4 was launched at 2:39 a.m. Tuesday.

Within 45 minutes after the second launch, Moscow television began a videotaped report from the launch site. The announcer said television coverage would be "complicated" because of fog in the region.

The three cosmonatus were shown walking up to the rocket, boarding the elevator alongside the steaming rocket, pausing at the entrance to the space capsule, high above the launching pad, and waving farewell.

Among those on the ground was Boris Yegorov, member of a three-man mission in 1964.

As the countdown proceeded, the television screen showed the support scaffolding being pulled back, leaving the enormous rocket standing alone.

Then, with a tremendous roar and burst of four flaming exhaust jets, the rocket made a gentle lift-off and rose slowly into the sky. The television camera followed its smoky trial until it almost passed out of view.

A telecast from inside the space capsule then showed two of the cosmonauts smiling and waving to the camera. The third was out of camera range.

Soyuz 5 went into an orbit with a high point of 143 miles and a low of 125 miles, at an angle of 51.4 degrees to the equator.

The angle was exactly the same as Shatalov's Soyuz 4, and the orbital dimensions were close to his.

Knife, Fork Club Dinner Set Monday

The Sedalia Knife and Fork Club dinner meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20, in the Ambassador Room of the Bothwell Hotel.

The program will be presented by Professor William H. Erich, of the mathematics department of Central Methodist College, Fayette, and organist at St. Mary's Episcopal Church there.

Professor Erich has appeared as soloist and accompanist in recitals and assembly programs at the college. For several years before going to Fayette he was director of Community Choir, chairman of the Community Concert Series and Professor of Piano at Landes College, Greenwood, S.C.

Barbara and John Stevens, seniors in the Conservatory of Music at Central Methodist College, will also appear on the program. They have appeared in many vocal productions and recitals, and they are members of the Acapella Choir and Opera Work Ship. In addition to these performances they have presented folk music many times.

The program will consist of two groups of piano selections by Professor Erich, one group of vocal selections by Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and one group of folk songs sung by Barbara Stevens, accompanied on the guitar by John Stevens.

Coach Fred Wehking Addresses Optimists

Fred Wehking, coach of the State Fair Community College Roadrunners basketball team, was the speaker at Optimist Club Tuesday noon at State Fair Restaurant. Wehking, who was introduced by Dr. D.C. Payne, program chairman, told in an amusing way of the team experiences during the first semester of playing, of the sometimes close scores, and various things that happened.

Coach Wehking stated he had never had a ball club start out as well as this one, and praised the boys saying that they really responded, They hustle, he said, and this is worth everything. He feels that if they can supplement this team next year they will again have a winning team. These kids, he pointed out, are good players and good kids to have in the community. There is a grade check once a month, he explained, for these boys are all draft age.

The Agriculture Building has been a great facility, there is no nicer one anywhere he said. The only thing lacking is a couple more dressing rooms.

The meeting was presided over by Ab Ball, vice-president, in the absence of the president. Invocation was given by Wray Schroeder.

Jack Creasy, district secretary, and a past vice-president of Optimist International from Columbia, spoke briefly on the Missouri district which he stated ranked first in Optimist International and is the second largest district.

Creasy told of the different phases of the club and how the Missouri district ranks. He urged that clubs welcome their new members and give them something to do, for there are many problems of youth that need help and this can be accomplished only be dedicated members.

A Grisly Account By Youth

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A 16-year-old boy testified Tuesday that he and Michael Charles Niccum planned to kidnap Linda Booth, the Des Moines girl who was battered to death with a golf club Nov. 20.

Thomas Lavern Logsdon of Pleasantville, Iowa, told Municipal Court Judge Luther Glanton Jr. that on the night of the murder he sat in a car outside a cleaning shop where Miss Booth worked while Niccum went inside.

The youth said Niccum returned after a few minutes with something that appeared to be blood splattered on his clothing.

Miss Boothe, a pert 17-year-old Lincoln High School coed, died a short while after she was found lying on the floor of the shop.

Niccum, 23, was charged by police after they reported finding a young witness whom they refused to identify.

Niccum was arrested in St. Louis, where his mother lives, on Dec. 28.

Logsdon testified that Niccum took a blackjack and pistol with him when he went into the cleaning shop to see the girl and when he returned he said "he had to kill her and that she wouldn't stop breathing."

At the conclusion of the two-hour preliminary hearing, Judge Glanton bound Niccum over to the Polk County Grand Jury on a murder charge.

Continue Sessions On Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Efforts to settle the six-day strike of the Wire Service Guild against The Associated Press resume today in executive session with federal mediators.

The Washington talks have been under way since Monday. Neither side has issued any reports concerning them, in accordance with a request of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The Guild struck Thursday morning in a dispute over wages and a modified Guild shop. AP service was not interrupted.

Tuesday, the AP Board of Directors—meeting in NewYork in its regular January session—expressed full support for AP management in the strike.

Paul Miller, president of The Associated Press, said, "The management is doing its best in two directions: First, it is striving in every way possible to bring the strike to an end. Second, it is continuing to produce an excellent news and photo report."

Retirement Income Credit Is a Tax-Saver

Editor's note: It is time to think about the income tax again. This is Chapter Eight of a series reviewing the regulations, with emphasis on taking advantage of all exclusions and deductions legally due you.

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Publications

The Retirement Income Credit, always a valuable tax-saver for those entitled to use it, has a double advantage this year.

It not only reduces the income tax otherwise due, but it softens the wallop of the surcharge as well.

This twin-action effect is produced because the income tax is first computed without the benefit of the retirement income credit, and then the credit is applied as a direct reduction against the tax itself. The secondary benefit comes when the 10 per cent surcharge (actually a 7½ per cent tax for 1968 since it was effective for only three-fourths of the year) is applied. The 7½ per cent is multiplied by the reduced income tax (after retirement income credit) and not the original higher income tax.

In some cases the credit goes a step further and eliminates the surcharge completely. The new surcharge is so calibrated that lower-income taxpayers are not subject to it. Conceivably, a retiree could be within the range of the surcharge before the retirement income credit, but among those exempt from the surcharge after credit.

The credit is applied against taxable retirement income—the pension and annuity income, interest and dividends included in gross income, together with gross rents collected. The credit is 15 per cent of the income, up to a maximum limitation of $1,524.

For taxpayers under 65 retirement income is only the taxable portion of pensions or annuities received under public retirement systems (for example, civil service employes or employes of city, county, state, federal government, or a school board).

Retirement income, or the maximum limitation, whichever is lesser, is first reduced in two steps before the 15 per cent credit is applied. First reduction is the total of Social Security or Railroad Retirement Act benefits received in 1968. (For many this will wipe out the credit completely.) The next reduction is a portion of earned income beyond certain amounts.

For those between 62 and 72 there is no reduction for the first $1,200 of earned income. For amounts between $1,200 and $1,700 the reduction is 50 per cent of the excess over $1,200. And if the earned income is more than $1,700 the excess over $1,450 is used to reduce the maximum amount of retirement income to be subjected to the 15 per cent credit.

Where husband and wife are each 65 or older and one is qualified for the credit, they may compute their credit on a maximum limitation of $2,286 instead of the $1,524 permitted on separate returns or where only one spouse is 65.

To be eligible for the credit you must have had earned income of at least $600 in each of any 10 years before 1968. A widow or widower qualifies if the deceased spouse earned more than $600 in each of any 10 years before death.

The rules are admittedly complex, but since the savings can be substantial, retirees should carefully consider the retirement credit.

There is an expanded discussion of the subject, including a filled-in sample retirement income credit form in the "Cut Your Own Taxes" book available to subscribers of this paper.

More Foreign Aid Funds Are Asked By President

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today to offset its sharp cuts of the last two years and provide $2.35 billion in foreign aid funds for 1970—a boost of almost $1 billion over 1969 levels.

In his final budget message, he declared:

"I have faith that America will not now fail in its resolve nor founder in its responsibility to press ahead for freedom and justice at home and abroad."

He assured Congress that U.S. economic assistance would be largely concentrated in 11 countries which have been self reliant in taking difficult steps for sustained development.

Although they were not named, aid officials indicated the countries were Vietnam, Laos, Tahiland, Indonesia and South Korea in East Asia; India, Pakistan and Turkey in South Asia and the Middle East and Colombia, Chile and Brazil in the Western hemisphere.

Apparently hoping to lessen certain resistance from the aid foes in Congress, Johnson gave assurance that the United States balance of payments would be protected. He said that some $1.84 billion—or 92 per cent of the $2 billion the Agency for International Development expects to expend in the year starting July 1—would finance the exports of U.S. goods and services abroad.

In addition he promised that special measures would be taken to see that AID-financed exports did not take the place of regular U.S. commercial exports.

The Johnson program is subject to revamping not only by Congress but also by the new administration. Johnson sought to put the emphasis on social progress and economic growth as the yardstick for development.

The major assistance programs would include $440 million for Vietnam, a boost of $114 million over 1969; $240 million for the other East Asian aid countries; $679 million for South Asia and the Near East which would almost double the heavily cut 1969 level of $352 million for this area.

Johnson asked $668 million for expanded education, agriculture and health programs in Latin America. He also sought $300 million to beef up the Inter-American Development Bank.

The Johnson request almost fulfilled the U.S. pledge to contribute $1 billion dollars annually in support of the Alliance for Progress to aid Latin America.

In requesting $185 million for aid to African countries, he said 65 per cent would be in technical assistance and capital to countries making significant economic progress. The rest will be concentrated on regional programs.

Other programs including contributions to the United Nations and other international organizations and to special contingency funds brought the request for new funds to $2.348 billion, an increase of $966 million.

Once again Johnson asked Congress to provide $160 million to the World Bank's International Development Association and $25 million to the Asian Development Bank.

He estimated that military assistance to needy allies would boost the aid figures $375 million to a total of $2.723 billion.

Johnson reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to nations struggling to provide a better life for their peoples. The Nixon program for aid remains to be unfolded, but the President-elect and the Republican party have urged that it be tied more closely to U.S. policy objectives.

Houtchens Says He's Not Bitter

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Missouri's State Democratic Chairman Delton L. Houtchens said Tuesday he expected to become the party's national chairman, but is not "disgruntled" because Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma was selected.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey promised Gov. Warren E. Hearnes at the party's national convention to recommend him as national chairman, Houtchens said.

"I find it difficult to believe that Vice President Humphrey now finds it impossible to honor a firm and unconditional commitment to Gov. Hearnes, myself and Missouri Democrats," he said.

Top Hereford Bull is Sold For $60,000

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—The National Western Stock Show champion Hereford bull was sold for the equivalent of $60,000 Tuesday, a record for the exhibition.

Clarence Cross of Jo-Su-Li farms, Colquitt, Ga., paid $45,000 for a three-quarter interest in the 1,795-pound yearling. The exhibitors, Alfred and Ferrall Weeks of Upstream Ranch, Taylor, Neb., retained the fourth interest in breeding revenues.

Upstream Dundy 187, winner of the Denver show, also won top honors for bulls at the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City last October. The animal is 200 pounds heavier than any bull in his breed class and the heaviest for his age of any ever shown at the Western.

The previous record sale price was $52,500 for the champion Hereford bull in the 1967 show.

The Chapel of the Presidents, a part of the new National Presbyterian Church and Center now under construction in Washington, D.C., will house memorabilia of past U.S. Presidents.

Kidnapers 'Chicken Out' After Abducting a Girl

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—"Two bad men" who kidnaped Paula Ann McGinnis released the 2½-year-old girl unharmed Tuesday night without receiving any ransom.

Her father, Frank McGinnis, said he received a telephone call demanding $200,000 ransom a short time after two men, posing as telephone repairmen, abducted the tot Tuesday. They left the housekeeper bound.

"Two bad men took me," the girl told her parents after she was found wandering along a street in nearby LaMirada less than 12 hours after her abduction.

"They apparently chickened out," said McGinnis, owner of a small tool and machine company.

McGinnis was at work and his wife was shopping when they learned of the kidnaping.

He said the first phone call came soon after he returned home.

"They told me the baby was all right, and to get $200,000 together," he said. "They called back three or four times, but didn't reply when we said, 'hello.'"

He said he received no instructions on how to pay the ransom. News of the abduction was carried widely but nothing was said of a ransom.

"They must have panicked when they heard nothing about the ransom," said McGinnis.

Revenue Bonds For Sewer Work Issued

CALIRORNIA — Permission to issue $4,000,000 in revenue bonds and acceptance of a low bid of $242,590 for construction of sewer interceptor lines were approved at a special meeting of the California City Council recently.

Council members were also told sewer rates must be increased by $1.75 per month for all customers in the city.

The rate increase would not go into effect immediately, but would start sometime between June 30, 1969, and June 30, 1970. This would take place when other bonds totaling $325,000 are sold.

On Black Culture

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to establish an 11-member national commission on Afro-American history and culture was introduced Tuesday in the House by Rep. James H. Scheuer, D- N. Y., and 22 cosponsors. Scheuer said Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., is sponsoring a companion proposal in the Senate.

Beethoven's only opera was "Fidelio," performed for the first time in 1805.

'Quake Misery Still in Sicily

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—Thousands are still homeless, fighting cold and humidity in shacks, tents and prefabricated shelters a year after a devastating earthquake struck western Sicily.

Nearly 300 persons were killed by the quake Jan. 15, 1968. Several towns were flattened and the already deeply depressed economy of the area suffered a disastrous blow.

To emphasize their difficulties, thousands staged a 48-hour general strike in the quake area Tuesday and today.

The main problems of the shanty towns are water, electricity and mud. The water is scarce because the towns are built in open fields, where there are no aqueducts. Water supplies come mainly from nearby communities.

Electricity is being supplied to the refugees free by the state-run electricity agency. But it has set a maximum of one kilowatt per family. The refugees contend this is not enough. They have offered to pay to get more, but say red tape is holding up the request.

When stoves are plugged in at night to heat the shacks, the light goes off.

"Sometimes it takes up to a week or 10 days to get the light back," said farmer Nino D'Antoni. "In some communities a compromise solution has been reached, with each shack using its stove every second night. So we have one warm night and one cold one."

When it rains the situation is tragic. The roads become mud fields, the tents are full of water, and communications come to a near standstill.

The Italian government has announced plans for reconstruction of the area. Two large cities are scheduled to replace the several scattered towns destroyed by the quake. Towns only damaged will expand on safer grounds.

The plans include the construction of industries capable of pulling the area out of its economic slump. There will be an airport, improved port facilities and new roads with two highways. The work is scheduled to start later this year.

Designer Scorns Nudity Trend

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Olga Erteszek is an undercover agent whose aim has been to eliminate the number of undergarments a woman has to wear. We owe much of our current comfort to her design ideas.

By combining such things as girdles and bras, slips and bras, the Olga Company was the pioneer in making it possible for women to control their figures while they wore less and less under their top layer of clothing.

But there is a great difference in a trend toward comfort and a trend toward nudity, Olga maintains.

This creative designer believes that today's undisciplined trend toward nudity has reached the point where bad taste is being indiscriminately promulgated as fashion.

"No woman," she said, "needs anything so silly as a 'no bra bra.' A designer can create such a thing and make money on it because the fashion press pushes it as the 'in' thing. But it's dishonest.

It's up to the fashion writers to educate women so that they will eventually become independent enough to know when they look good and when they look ridiculous. And this whole trend toward bareness is ridiculous."

Olga feels that whether the nudity craze runs toward a bare midriff, a neckline that plunges to the navel or a two-inch skirt, the press makes every woman feel out of it if she doesn't get into it.

"Then they all look alike," she said. "And, of course, those who wear these things nearly always are the wrong type."

Olga could design a 'no bra bra' and make money on it, too. She has no business ax to grind in criticizing this kind of underpinning. But she has a conscience, too, and feeling of responsibility about the women she underdresses.

"As a designer, and the mother of three daughters, I am deeply concerned with the role which fashion is playing in helping to build a better America and a better world.

"That is why I am moved at this time to express my views on the recent trend by some members of the fashion world to encourage American women of all ages (and figures) to indiscriminately reveal their bodies.

"A designer has as much social responsibility as an educator, a writer, or any other artist. The pursuit of the sensational, the extreme, the provocative is not new in the history of fashion but today's attempt to capitalize on tasteless nudity is no more good design than pornography is fine art....."

Rho Tau Meets At Whiteman

Rho Tau Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha met Jan. 7 at Whiteman Air Base Service Club. Mrs. Pat Jones was hostess.

In the Jaycee, "Outstanding Young Man of the Year Contest," Rho Tau will sponsor Dennis Onwiler as outstanding young man and John Hays as outstanding young educator.

Plans were discussed concerning the "Youth For Heart Ball" which will be held Jan. 25 at the Agriculture Building of the Fairgrounds.

Several Rho Tau members plan to attend the state board meeting at Nevada, Mo. Feb. 8.

Pat Jones reported that a benefit square dance will be held at Heber Hunt school March 29. All proceeds will go to Missouri Girl's Town, Mountain Grove, Mo.

Mrs. Wanda Braden and Mrs. Pam Boul presented an educational program, "Local Political Structure." The various types of city government in Missouri were explained.

Mrs. Feby Ruth will be hostess to the February meeting.

The following members were present: Mrs. Jean Allen, Mrs. Pam Price Boul, Mrs. Wanda Braden, Mrs. Anne Burkeholder, Mrs. Shirley Cooper, Mrs. Naomi Edmonds, Mrs. Jean Edwards, Mrs. Connie Evert, Mrs. Betty Hall, Mrs. Pat Jones, Mrs. Mary Lou McCully, Mrs. Connie Osborn, Mrs. Jane Rader, Mrs. Feby Ruth, Mrs. Jackie Stockwood, and Mrs. Jackie Tedford.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulconer, Knob Noster, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Ann, to Joseph Allen Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Young, Greenwood, Ind. Miss Faulconer will graduate in 1969 from Knob Noster Senior High School where she is a member of Student Council and the Future Homemakers of America. Yougn graduated from the United Electronics Laboratory, Louisville, Ky., in 1964. He received his Air Force discharge in 1968 and is presently employed with the Indiana Bell Telephone Company. A June wedding is planned.

Auxiliary Hears District Report

CALIFORNIA — The American Legion Auxiliary, Jobe-Elliott 17 met in January with 14 members present.

President Mrs. Ott Wells, conducted a memorial service for Mrs. Fred Meusch and Mrs. Anna Kunze. She was assisted by Mrs. Fred Andres, Mrs. Floyd Cullison, Mrs. Otto Hossman, Mrs. Mabel Zaugg and Mrs. Henry Ziehmer.

The president reported on the 8th district meeting she had attended in Columbia. The meeting noted the legion's 50th anniversary.

Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Cullison and Mrs. Alma Leonard served refreshments during the social hour.

Bathing Band

When King George III of England bathed in the sea at Weymouth, he was followed into the water by the town band. The fully clothed musicians loyally waded up to their knees without missing a note of "God Save the King."

Celebrate Their 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Vergel Rugen, Bunceton, were the recent dinner guests at Jefferson City of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Potts, Tipton. The occasion was the Rugens 25th wedding anniversary.

Enroute home from Jefferson City, the couples stopped at the Tipton City Hall where the Rugen's children waited with a surprise anniversary reception. Some 75 guests were served cake and punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Rugen were married Dec. 4, 1943, in New Brunswick, Canada. They later moved to Missouri to make their home. The couple have nine children and five grandchildren.

A highlight of the day for the honorees was a telegram from Mrs. Rugen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kilpatrick, Nashwaaksis, New Brunswick, Canada, and her brother, Basil Kilpatrick, St. John, New Brunswick.

Officers Elected At MSAS Meeting

The Tri-County Medical Secretaries and Assistants Society held their January meeting in Knob Noster. Members from Sedalia, Warrensburg and Concordia attended. Cindy Shackelford, an employee of Dr. Reynold's, Warrensburg, was a guest.

The 1969 officers elected were installed by Past-President, Jessie Thompson, Warrensburg. They are president, Marion Dotson, Concordia; president-elect, Dorothy Bailey, Warrensburg; vice-president, Emilie Brunjes, Sedalia; secretary, Ada Potter, Sedalia; treasurer, Donna Cottrill, Warrensburg.

Dr. Hugh Hanna, Warrensburg, was elected as advisor for a three year term.

Pompons, Mums Deck Altar At Miss Barrett's Wedding

CALIFORNIA — Miss Elizabeth Ann Barrett, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Tommy Barrett, California, Mo., and Larry Gail Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cook, McGirk, were married in December at the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Tommy Barrett, father of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar illumined by three wrought iron candelabra holding lighted tapers. Baskets of orchid pompon and white spider mums completed the setting. The pews were marked with white satin bows centered with lavender ornaments.

Miss Ruth Longan, organist played traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Fred Ziehmer, sister of the bride, as she sang, "The Greatest of These is Love" and "Wedding Prayer." Miss Longan and Mrs. Ziehmer wore orchid dresses and corsages of white carnations.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father was formally attired in an empire gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza. It featured a bodice of lace with long tapered sleeves and a rounded neckline outlined in pearls. The full chapel length train fell gracefully from the bodice back.

The bride's three-tiered elbow length veil of English illusion was secured to a crown of pearls and Aurora Borealis. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli.

Mrs. Gordon Gump, sister of the groom was matron of honor. She wore a gown of orchid chiffon over linen. A matching Dior bow secured her short circular veil. She carried a nosegay of orchid mums and heather.

The groom chose Kenneth W. Phillips of McGirk, best man. Guests were seated by Nelson Cook, GordonGump, Bluford Duvall and Dwain Albin.

Mrs. Jackie Jensen of Springfield, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Both the mother of the bride and the mother of the groom wore ensembles in the wedding colors and corsages of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church dining hall. The three-tiered cake, topped with two white doves, was decorated with orchid roses and white sugar doves holding silver rings. Orchid mums and fern surrounded the base. Double crystal candle holders holding white tapers and a crystal punch bowl completed the table which was skirted to the floor with a white cloth.

Mrs. Forrest Katschman, was in charge of the reception. Assisting were Mrs. Alvin Allee, Mrs. Cecil Allee, Mrs. James Atchley, Mrs. Don Birdsong, Mrs. Freddie Bolin, Mrs. Jack Bowlin, Mrs. Harry Brizendine, Mrs. Ward Geier, Mrs. Carl George, Mrs. Ralph Peck, Mrs. Layton Reed, Mrs. Leslie Reed, Mrs. Lee Roy Robertson and Mrs. Gene Rohrbach.

After a trip to Oklahoma the newlyweds will live in McGirk.

The bride and groom are graduates of California High School. The groom is employed by the Missouri Division of Employment Security, Jefferson City.

Horoscope

Aquarians (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) are usually described as pleasant-looking persons with graceful, medium-sized figures, broad foreheads and a sympathetic expression.

You are a healthy person who likes to be busy in useful work which must always have a touch of culture and idealism about it.

The 19, 26-8, are especially good days for you this month. Romantic and financial success is indicated on the 31st.

Exercise caution the 25th as work will have you under strain. Be careful in your correspondence and speech.

Local Women Hold A Sorority Office

Miss Marty Phillips and Miss Penny Wendt have been elected officers of Delta Delta Delta sorority, Drury College, Springfield, Mo. Miss Phillips, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Phillips, formerly of Sedalia, is the recording secretary. Miss Wendt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wendt, 2206 West Fifth, is the chapter service projects chairman.

Club Notes

Project reports were heard at the Jan. 2 meeting of the R-I Hustlers, LaMonte.

County youth agent, Charles Spradling spoke to the group and a demonstration was given by three members.

Paul Eicholz was greeted as a new member.

The Beamen Arator 4-H club met Jan. 6 to discuss plans for parent's night and a Feb. 3 Valentine party. All will enjoy a potluck dinner that night and members will observe a Valentine exchange.

New club members are Kimberly Lane and Stanley White.

Mrs. J. H. Roser, Jr.

Say Vows

Miss Jane Ann Paul, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rex Paul, Dover, Del., and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Paul, Sedalia, became the bride of Lt. (j.g.) James Henry Roser, Jr., in a Dec. 28 ceremony. Roser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roser, Hockessin, Del.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin faille with skimmer bodice. Her high beaded collar was embellished with pearl and crystal beading as was her bridal headdress. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and red sweetheart roses.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul were among the wedding guests.

The newly married couple will honeymoon in Bermuda.

Both Lieut. and Mrs. Roser are graduates of the University of Delaware. Mrs. Roser is a government linguist in Baltimore.

PTA Council Addressed By Rev. Albright

The Sedalia PTA Council met Jan. 8 at the First Baptist Church with Mark Twain School serving as hosts, and presenting the name tags, ice-breaker, devotional and refreshments.

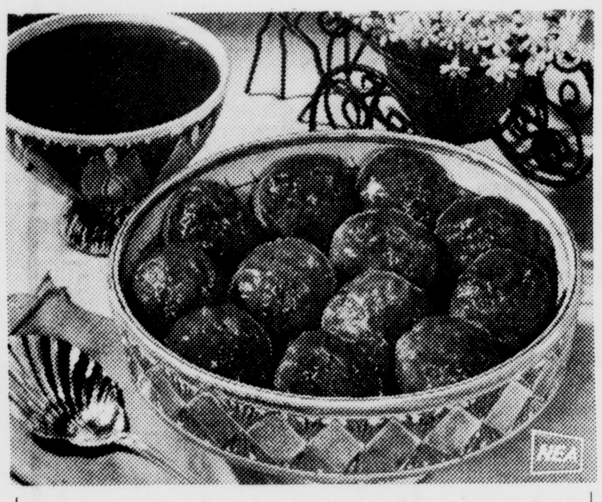

Mrs. Morris Walker, president, was in charge of the business session which included the minutes read by Mrs. Ed Worley, treasurer's report, membership count won by Smith-Cotton, and announcements.

Mr. William Hall, Sedalia Industrial Development director, provided the audience with the highlighting factors of the junior high school bond issue. A question and answer period followed.

Mrs. Guy Snider, program chairman, introduced the special guest speaker for the afternoon, Rev. M. G. Albright.

Albright basing his topic on respect for laws, stressed the sanctity of people above rules. The speaker commented that respect for law will stem naturally from respect for other persons.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

These he-man meat balls are more than 2 inches across. They are flavored with chopped onion and bound with rolled oats, egg and milk. So much to the good.

Then there's the sauce — a zingy tomato catsup and garlic combination that is great. It goes equally well with the buttered noodles you might be serving with them.

BARBECUE MEAT BALLS

Sauce:

¼ cup finely-chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
3 tablespoons vinegar
4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon pepper
One 14-oz. bottle catsup
½ cup water

Meat Balls:

1½ lb. ground beef
¾ cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 Egg
½ cup milk

For sauce, saute onion and garlic in butter in medium-sized saucepan until onion is tender. Add remaining ingredients; combine thoroughly. Cook over very low heat while preparing meat balls.

For meat balls, combine all ingredients thoroughly. Shape to form 12 meat balls. Brown well on all sides in small amount of shortening. (If using electric fry pan, set at 360 degrees). Drain off excess fat. Pour sauce over meat balls. Reduce heat; cover and simmer about 30 minutes; occasionally spoon sauce over meat balls. Six servings.

Vice-president Louis Atkinson was program chairman.

STEAM, NOT SMOKE

It's steam, not smoke, that rises from an erupting volcano. Volcanic ash causes the black color of the vapor and sometimes falls with the condensed steam in the form of "mud rain."

Install Rebekahs At Public Meeting

GREEN RIDGE — The 1969 officers of Green Ridge Rebekah Lodge were installed Jan. 6 at a public meeting in the Lodge Hall. They are Mrs. John Bronson, noble grand; Mrs. Dale Brown, vice-grand; Miss Nola Barrow, recording secretary; Mrs. Loy Smith, financial secretary; Mrs. Alvin Howe, treasurer.

Appointed officers are Mrs. Otis McNew, warden; Mrs. Bennie Clevenger, conductor; Mrs. Frances Baslee, chaplain; Mrs. Leon Morgan, Mrs. Lloyd Brown, supporters to noble grand; Mrs. Glen Heck, Mrs. Maude Ward, supporters to vice-grand; Mrs. George Upton, musician; Mrs. Floyd Egbert, color bearer; Mrs. Jack Morgan, inside guard; Leon Morgan, outside guard; Mrs. J. M. Palmer, reporter. Mrs. Albert Upton was seated as past noble grand.

Dresden Was Founded During a Time of Troubles

By Hazel Lang

Mary Etta Garton was just four years old when the covered wagon stopped two miles west and north of Dresden and Edward Spencer Garton, her father, decided to settle there.

He was a rich man from Franklin County, Kentucky and brought a great deal of money with him strapped to his wife, Angeline Hill Garton, and his children, including little Mary Etta, since robbers along the way never bothered women and children. This was in 1845, and later Garton acquired thousands of acres of land around Dresden and LaMonte.

Had Strong Views

He was a hard man, believing that everyone should work. He even shooed the chickens off the roost before they were ready, saying: "The old man has to scratch, you scratch, too."

He employed many men and boys, who also were able to accumulate quite a little money, but they earned every cent. Leaving one day for town, he couldn't see a thing for his men to do, so he ordered them to tear down the rail fence. When he returned he discovered that with the fence down there was no place to keep his small mules, so he ordered the fence rebuilt.

Among the young men working for him was 18-year-old Mayo DeJarnett, who was in love with Mary Etta. One day she started after some water when she met Mayo who was on horseback, and the young couple made up their minds they would go to Georgetown and get married.

That was on June 19, 1856, and Mary Etta was 15 years old. They were married in the courthouse at Georgetown and a board served as a desk.

When they returned, the father had left orders that Mary Etta be locked in the smoke house by her sister to teach to teach her discipline. But Garton liked young Mayo, so the marriage stood, and Mayo and Mary Etta had 15 children, the next to the youngest being Mrs. Jeff Drake, who resides at 620 West Fifth.

Closets were Garton's hiding places for his money, which he stuffed in long stockings, but three times he was robbed.

Times of Fear

There was fear in the family, as in all families, during the Civil War, and when the women and children would hear the approach of the horses' hoofs they would open the door a bit and peep out, but the horses, to the relief of the women and children, always went on by. Strapped to members of the family was the money, for the militia would take anything in sight. The men slept in haystacks, for if they were found in the homes they would be shot. The women were never touched.

Angeline Garton became ill with consumption, and Mary Etta would take her children every day and go to take care of her mother. It was on the night that she died that word was received that the slaves had been freed and when she was told she said, "Praise the Lord."

Garton had slaves and when they were freed, one salve woman left a small boy, Little Joe. The family was very fond of him but he didn't live very long, and was buried in the family burial ground. When the bodies of Garton and his wife were moved years later to a cemetery at LaMonte, the bones of little Joe were taken too.

O. A. STINE for a long time operated a pottery at Dresden.

It had been the mother's request that Mary Etta, who had been so good to her, be given some land, and so Garton gave her a home and 200 acres. Garton had invested heavily in the stock market and when a crash came he lost all he had, even to part of the land that belonged to Marry Etta, leaving her only 83 acres. It was on this land that Mrs. Drake grew up and lived after she was married.

I Sold Their Goods

In those early days the peddlers would go around with medicine, flavoring and other things. The spices were pounded out with a hammer and put in glass jars, and cinnamon was used instead of chewing gum. When one family was in trouble that trouble was shared by their neighbors. The family doctor would walk or go on horseback to the homes and to deliver a baby cost just a dollar or a dollar and a half.

Dresden was laid out in the spring of 1863 by William Agee and Thomas J. Lester. The 80-acre lot was equally divided between the two men, Agee, from Kentucky and Lester, from Virginia. Dr. T.P. McCluney, who had imigrated first to Hazel Hill Township in Johnson County, settled in Pettis County when Dresden was laid out, and moved to the town.

William H. Morris settled in the county in 1866 about a mile and a half from Dresden and in 1876 moved to the town, where he engaged in the mercantile business. Then he purchased a flouring mill and moved to Boonville, leaving a clerk in charge of his store, but he returned to Dresden in 1881, renting the mill to someone. He served as postmaster of Dresden from 1870 to 1876 and was a justice of the peace and a member of the school board.

Site of Terminus

Three years before, in 1863, the Missouri Pacific Railroad was built on from Sedalia to Dresden, which became the railroad terminus for about a year before the railroad continued farther west. At the west end of Dresden was the turn table on which the train, upon reaching the end of the road, was turned around for its return trip east. During this time Dresden was of considerable importance, for the terminus was one of the biggest shipping points on the road.

The principal street in Dresden, Main, is where Highway 50 now goes through,

Dresden is Founded

Last Pottery

Because of the clay available in the Dresden area, potteries were a business there from the first. Shown in this picture is the last pottery, which was operated by O. A. Stine.

but at that time the street went only to the curve of the road east and about the same distance west. The depot was located on the north side of the tracks and in the center of what is now Highway T.

Even before there was a town of Dresden, in 1860 the school building, which still stands, was erected by John W. Agee. Except for an addition and rest rooms on the west side, the building is the same and is now District R-12. A huge pine tree is on the school grounds where, according to I.C. Evans, 510 State Fair, the boys used to climb to eat their lunches. Among the teachers who taught there were T.R. Luckett, Quincy Morgan and Nell Reese.

Dr. David F. Brown practiced in Dresden after his graudation in 1873, and was engaged in the mercantile business in 1874 with Jacob Thomas until 1879, when he went into business for himself in a general store.

Dresden was an agricultural and stockraising area and among the prominent farmers and stock raisers were Joshua Gentry, Joel B. Gentry, Peter Courtney, Mentor Thomson and J.A. Persinger.

Pottery Was Big

The chief industry of the town was pottery, and there were two in that early period, one established by Thomas Ebey in 1866 and one in about 1879 by Cook and Lane. On and near Little Muddy, north of Dresden and on Big Muddy two and a half miles southwest of Dresden, are beds of clay, mostly olive or white, sometimes tinged with red, 15 to 20 feet thick, perfect for the pottery industry.

In later years O.A. Stine, a potter by trade, came to Dresden from Ohio and started a pottery which he operated for a long time. The clay was brought from Big Muddy in a wagon and the pottery was located on the north side of the road just west of the curve in Highway 50 as it leaves Dresden going east.

In the building were the potter's wheels where, with the wheel run by a foot treadle, he shaped by hand — jugs, crocks and other things. Between this building and the kiln was another building where the greenware was placed on shelves to dry. Shelves surrounded the furnace in the kiln where the greenware was then put. Several cords of wood were used to keep the furnace hot, the flame coming out the top, and the pottery was left on the shelves 48 hours to bake. After it had cooled it was loaded and hauled as far as Marshall. A salt glaze was sometimes put on the crockery.

Lives in Sedalia

The Stine family home was just west of the pottery and then the family moved across the street where one of the daughters, Miss Nadine Stine still lives. Another daughter, Mrs. Atwell Bohling, lives in Sedalia, as does a son, Lawrence Stine.

The clay had to be ground before it could be used and in the grinding process a horse was led around and around. Charlie, one of the Stine boys, who now lives in Johnson City, Tenn., was leading the horse around. Inside his dad was at the pottery wheel and heard him yell, he went out and there was Charlie down in a cistern into which he had fallen as he led the horse.

On the southwest corner of Main and Depot street was a two story building with a long hall and store downstairs and the Knights of Columbus Hall and offices upstairs.

Good to Kids

At one time Harry Wallington, who lived in a house in the block in back of the building, operated the store. Wallington was very interested in recreational activities for the kids and often gave them things from his store. He always promised the winners in ball games and other games treats, but with Wallington they were all winners and all ended up getting treats. It paid off because the kids decided to do something for him.

One evening they had a pie supper and the proceeds were used to lay a sidewalk from the building to the next corner past Wallington's house, the only sidewalk Dresden ever had. In Sedalia are Wallington's children, Clint Wallington, Mrs. Sarah McMurdo, Mrs. Opal Hugelman, Mrs. Flossie Warren and Mrs. Nell Fletcher. Working in the store with his dad was Dave Wallington. The Wallington store was first operated by Harry Steele and then by Billingsley.

The house was at one time the home of Judge E.W. Couey and his wife. It is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Lemler.

For many years the railroad agent at Dresden was Henry Kemp, and before radio and television the men were just as eager to hear the returns on an election as they are today, but they would have to wait for the newspaper. On election night they would gather at the Dresden hall and Kemp kept the cinder path hot taking the returns he was able to get from the depot to the hall and then going back for more.

There was a big crib west of the depot owned by J.M. Lee and Hayden. Corn was brought to the crib where it was shelled, the sheller run by a steam engine. O.F. Gorrell, H.L. Schallett and Homer Ward built a smaller one down east. The wheat was hauled in wagons sometimes as far as four miles, threshed and shoveled by hand.

Had Postmaster Job

The post office was in the double building and T.V. Steele was postmaster, with A.B. Ferguson assistant. Steele had an assistant to take care of things while he was out paper hanging.

A grocery was at Main and Agee street, and farther up on Main was the old blacksmiths shop. There was a nice hotel in Dresden, too, and an elevator, a drug store and barber shop. Jeff Drake was responsible for the building of the Woodman Hall in 1910, on the northeast corner of Main and Depot and a ball park. There is only one store in Dresden now, which Mrs. Fred Whitfield operates.

There were four churches in addition to the Negro church, a Baptist, which is still standing; a North Methodist, now a community house; a South Methodist, which burned, was rebuilt and within a year burned again. It was rebuilt once more, and stands. The Christian church was the fourth church and all that remains of it is the baptistery.

Each church had an evening service once a month and the boys went to whatever church was having services because they knew the girls would be there.

Old Couey Home

This is the home in which Judge E. W. Couey and his wife lived years ago in Dresden. Then it was the home of Wallington family and it is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Lemler.

One of the well known men of the community was George Rothwell, father of Mrs. Boyd Rogers, 1720 South Grand. One thing that Evans remembers about him is that he had chin whiskers and when he would go out to the farm to cut his corn in the fall he would put bailing wire around the whiskers to keep from getting cockleburs in them, the cockleburs grew so high.

Evans is the son of Judge J.T. Evans, a justice of the peace at one time. When a landlord wanted an old couple evicted from his property it was Judge Evan's job to do it, for which he was paid, but the Judge couldn't stand to see the old couple without a place to live so he paid to have them moved to another house.

Dresden was named for Dresden, in the southern part of Germany. It is the center of Dresden township, Pettis County.

Garden Club Meets At Banning Home

Sedalia Garden Club No. 4, met Friday, Jan. 10, at the home of Mrs. Walter Banning, Route 2. Mrs. George Dabner and Mrs. James Hosford were assistant hostesses.

A dessert course was served to 18 members and one guest, Mrs. Ralph Banning.

Mrs. Roy Kirchhofer, president, opened the meeting with a poem, writen by Hazel Lang, entitled "The New Year."

Mrs. Walter Banning, program chairman, presented Mrs. George Lockett, who read an interesting paper on "God Gave It, Let's Save It."

Exhibit award, an arrangement using natural material, went to Mrs. Banning. Mrs. Floyd Knerl received the horticulture award with a decorative planter.

The February meeting, with a bake and white elephant sale, will be at the home of Mrs. George Lively, 1017 South Barrett.

Elect Democrats, Get Republicans

NAPES, Fla. (AP) — Collier County voters elected a Democratic county commission, sheriff and county judge in November, but they're getting Republicans instead.

Sheriff E. A. "Doug" Hendry and County Judge Dick Stanley changed their party affiliation to GOP this week. Commission Chairman Les Whitaker shifted to the GOP several weeks ago, giving Republicans the majority vote on the board.

North Carolina Blitzes Georgia Tech's Cagers

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The nickname was born back in the days of the Confederacy, when a Southern unit held firm against a superior Union force and a Yankee officer observed "they must have tar on their heels."

But this band of Tar Heels from North Carolina is just the reverse—lightning quick. North Carolina, the nation's second-ranked college basketball team, used their fast break to advantage in a 101-76 blitz of Georgia Tech Tuesday night.

While North Carolina won as expected, a couple of teams in the lower half of the national rankings—No. 17 Northwestern and No. 19 Cincinnati—were upset victims.

Marquette, No. 15 and the only other nationally-ranked team in action—romped over Wisconsin-Milwaukee 118-60 Marquette's home court.

The Tar Heels, who have lost only once in 13 outings this season, wasted no time blazing past Georgia Tech. North Carolina built a 56-33 halftime margin to a lead of as many as 42 points.

Olympic standout Charlie Scott led the attack at Atlanta, Ga. with 30 points for North Carolina, while Bill Bunting had 22. Rich Yunkus topped Tech with 28 points in a game marked by a total of 42 personal fouls.

Marquette's 118 points against Wisconsin-Milwaukee set a school record in the cross-town game. The previous Marquette high had been 113 against Ripon in 1954.

Dean Meminger had 31 points and George Thompson 20 in Marquette's 10th consecutive victory. Cecil Morries led the losers with 15.

Drake, led by Willie McCarter, improved its 30-26 halftime lead to 55-41 eight minutes deep into last half and held on from there in handing Cincinnati its first home court loss in 19 games.

McCarter hit 10 of his 19 points in the decisive burst. Don Ogletree led Cincinnati with 22.

Indiana, down 8-1 in the early going at Bloomington, Ind., reeled off 14 consecutive points against favored Northwestern and took it from there for its first Big Ten victory in four starts.

Joe Cooke, hitting on 14 of 21 shots from the field, led Indiana with 32 points, while Dale Kelley paced Northwestern with 22.

In some other major games, Wisconsin held off Minnesota 68-61, Iowa edged Michigan State 77-76, Texas A&M scored a 76-75 overtime victory over Southern Methodist, Rice beat Texas Christian 71-64 and Seattle edged Oklahoma City 75-73.

Girl Jockey Battle May Be Settled

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The battle of the sexes in the jockey ranks comes to a head in the fourth race at Tropical Park today when teen-ager Barbara Jo Rubin may ride a horse named Stoneland.

If she makes the ride, Barbara Jo will become the first female jockey to race at an American parimutuel track.

But she faces revolt from the male jockeys. And there's a chance Stoneland won't even make it to the post.

In the draw for the race, Stoneland wound up on the also-eligible list. That means at least one of the 12 starting horses must be scratched. Then Barbara Jo's horse might make it through the luck of another draw.

Several of the riders named on horses for the six-furlong fourth race said they would not compete against Barbara Jo.

Craig Perret and Carlos Berrera both said they would ride. But Mike Miceli and Gerry Gellitano said they would not.

Mike Hole said "maybe, maybe not." Others like Bobby Ussery, Jerry Harrison and Bob Wholey Jr. adopted a wait-and-see atitude.

"It's too bad," commented the veteran Ussery," that a man has to make a decision whether he's going to ride against a girl or not."

Most jockeys at Tropical are members of the Jockeys' Guild. The guild cannot organize a formal boycott without running the risk of violating anti-trust laws.

Barbara Jo, who has remained quiet throughout the fuss, qualified to ride by passing a test Monday before track stewards. She broke a horse from the gate and her filly outran two other horses ridden by male jockeys.

If she performs capably in her first race, she will be issued a riding license.

Tropical General Manager Elmer Vickers said: "I have every confidence the race will go if she is in it. We have no plans to move it from its present position as the fourth race on the program to the last, as done at Churchill Downs. Neither do I anticipate any sudden outbreak of sickness in the jockey's room before the fourth race. Because any rider who takes off for reason of sickness will forfeit his mounts the rest of the day."

The male-female jockey feud started when Penny Ann Early was granted a license to ride in Kentucky in November. She was named on three horses, one of which was scratched because of muddy conditions, another on which she was replaced by a male, and another where the male jockeys staged a boycott, causing cancellation of the race at Churchill Downs.

Meanwhile, Penny Ann Early and Sandra "Sandy" Schleiffers have applied for jockey licenses at Santa Anita in Arcadia, Calif. Penny Ann and "Sandy" must go through the same qualifying routine at Santa Anita as Barbara Jo did at Tropical Park.

Upsets In Knob Noster Cage Play

The second and third-seeded teams in the Knob Noster tournament were upset during the first round Tuesday night in the second night of cage action.

Concordia's Orioles defeated St. Paul's of Concordia, second-seeded in the tourney, 45-32 in the evening's opener following a tremendous comeback. The score was tied at 7-7 at the end in of the first quarter with St. Paul's taking a four-point lead at the end of the half. St. Paul was held to three points in the third quarter, compared to the Oriole's 13 and the Orioles added seven more points to their lead in the fourth quarter.

Score by Quarters:

Concordia	7	10	13	15—45

Former Sedalian Named 'Animal' By Teammates

To the fans of the Southwest Baptist basketball team, the play of 6'2" Senior forward Barry Wallace has been a pleasant surprise this year. Nicknamed "The Animal" by his teammates, that tag seems to indicate the abandon and energy that Barry puts into his play. One of the fastest men on the team, as well as about the strongest, Barry has to use all of his speed, strength, and jumping ability to play against the oppositions' forwards who usually are two to three inches taller than he.

The son of Rev. J.R. Wallace of 1504 West Fifth, Barry graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1965. At Smith-Cotton Barry was just about all-everything in basketball, compiling a fabulous high school record. He began his college career at Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia, Ark., but transferred to SWBC as the second semester of his first year began.

One of the two married members of the basketball team, Barry is married to the former Peggy Chastain, also of Sedalia. Peggy is now a first grade teacher in the Halfway, Mo. school district, as Barry is finishing his undergraduate program. After graduation in May, Barry hopes to attend dental school in Kansas City.

With a promising future ahead of him and graduation just a couple of months away, Barry might be expected to give less than his all in basketball, but nothing could be further from the truth.

"Barry is surely the hardest worker on our team, and has more competitive spirit than I have ever seen in my six years of coaching," said Coach Jim Dudley, the SWBC basketball mentor. "Barry is certainly going to be missed on our team next year, not only for his basketball abilities, but simply because he is one of the finest young men around anywhere — and those kind are hard to replace."

Tuscumbia, Stover Win In Tourney

An upset of the second-seeded team and a victory by the home club highlighted the second night of opening-round action in the Stover Invitational Tournament Tuesday, as Tuscumbia registered a 74-69 win over second-seeded Leeton and Stover's Bulldogs came through to cop a 67-54 victory over Pilot Grove.

Schlesinger and Wyrick were the big guns in Tuscumbia's attack, with 20 and 21 points, as the seventh-seeded cagers defeated Leeton. Armstrong of Leeton took game scoring honors with 26 points. He was helped by Bancroft, who added 20.

Score by quarters:

Tuscumbia	20	18	19	17—74
Leeton	12	20	24	13—69

Individual scoring: Tuscumbia — Graves, 6; Jenkins, 4; Schekorra, 9; Schlesinger, 20; Wyrick, 21; S. Wyrick, 14; Leeton — Bancroft, 20; Armstrong, 26; Combes, 10; Teter, 4; Cronhardt, 7; Wilcoxon, 2.

A balanced offensive attack told the tale for Stover. Four Bulldogs hit the nets for double figures, led by Geary and Byler, with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

For Pilot Grove it was Wolfe leading the way with 15 points.

Score by quarters:

Stover	15	18	12	22—67
Pilot Grove	7	14	16	17—54

Individual scoring: Stover — Geary, 14; Rowland, 12; Bealer, 2; Byler, 13; Stevens, 6; Mueller, 10; Lucas, 2; Worthley, 8; Pilot Grove — Wolfe, 15; Jobe, 6; Schupp, 2; Monk, 10; Ellebracht, 8; Richerson, 4; Schuster, 4; Watring, 5.

Game Flag Ceremony By Air Patrol

The flag ceremony before the Sacred Heart — LaMonte game Tuesday night was presented by Sedalia's Civil Air Patrol. The Sedalia organization represents one of the outstanding youth programs in the nation, in which training is given in communications, aerospace training and flying opportunities.

Flag bearers were Cadet Basic Donnie Knott, Corporal Randy Turley, and Cadet Third Class David Pummill, under the direction of Commandant of Cadets, Al Thompson.

Senior Member Father Miller of Sacred Heart Church directs the patrol. Other senior members include Dr. Longworth, squadron commander; Walter Pummill, executive officer, Sam Watson, training officer; Carl Dedrick, maintenance officer.

Can Rangers Halt Plunge to Cellar?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Can the New York Rangers, who once headed the East Division of the National Hockey League, however briefly, halt their rapid plunge toward the division cellar?

The Rangers gave no assurance they could last night as they lost 3-1 to hard-skating Bill Flett and the Los Angeles Kings on the West Coast.

Flett scored in the first and third periods and former Ranger Gordon LaBossiere insured the victory with a third Los Angeles score in 7:15 of the finale.

Vic Hadfield registered the New York goal in 58 seconds of the second period on a pass from Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert.

The contest was the only league game scheduled.

Battle for Ball

Namath, Others Report To East for Sunday Game

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Joe Namath is happy and he says it has nothing to do with his $15,000 winner's share from the Super Bowl or other riches likely to follow this milestone in football history.

Namath reported in Tuesday night to the East squad for Sunday's American Football League All-Star Game in the Gator Bowl, along with 10 other members of the world champion New York Jets.

"I'm happy and monetary value is no part of it," Namath said when asked what he figured the AFL's first victory over the National Football League champs will mean to him financially.

"It isn't that I think I have enough money," the rough speaking but smooth throwing quarterback said, punctuating his remarks with a finger poked at his listeners.

"The way I spend it, there probably isn't enough," he said, "but I'm happy and my plan for the off season is to stay happy."

Namath is scheduled to share the east quarterbacking 50-50 with Bob Griese, in the All-Star Game.

At least, that's the way Coach Wally Lemm plans it right now. But he isn't giving any guarantees.

"Each of them will play half the game," Lemm said. "I think each of them will quarterback a full half, but I'll have to work that out with them."

Will he stick to that timetable regardless of the game situation?

"I won't promise that," he replied with a broad smile.

Namath, who led the East to a 25-24 victory in last year's AFL All-Star Game here, was due to join practice sessions today along with 10 other members of the New York Jets who won the pro football title by beating the Baltimore Colts 16-7 at Miami Sunday.

Even the West All-Stars, who will try their best to beat Namath Sunday and prevent a third consecutive East victory, talked mostly about Namath's skill and poise in leading the Jets to the AFL's first Super Bowl championship.

John Hadl, San Diego quarterback who will start for the West, said it was the best game he ever saw Namath play.

"I think he's the best in the business right now, by far," Hadl said.

West Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City said the result gave everyone in the AFL a big lift, proving to the public that the younger league is no longer inferior.

Vikings Prove Too Tough For Gremlins

The Sacred Heart Gremlins held LaMonte's powerful offense within range for a half Tuesday night, but the Vikings proved too tough to handle for a full game as they defeated the Grems 75-50 at Sacred Heart in a Kaysinger Conference game.

Trailing only 34-23 at the half, the Vikings got off to a running third-quarter start and there was no catching them as they outscored the Grems 26-10. The only bright spot for Sacred Heart saw the final quarter, in which they made up two points of the lead.

Leading the way for Sacred Heart was Ron Huhman, who scored 24 big points. Jim Wanserski was his chief assistance, adding 16 markers of his own.

Bybee and Sevier led LaMonte, with 23 and 20 points, respectively. Bennett added 17 to the balanced effort.

LaMonte ran away with the 'B' game, 44-18. John Coxon was Sacred Heart's leading scorer, but the entire S-H team could not equal the output of LaMonte's high scorer, Dillon, who had 26 points.

Score by quarters:

LaMonte	13	21	26	15—75
Sacred Ht.	11	12	10	17—50

Individual scoring: Sacred Heart — Wanserski 16; Huhman 24; Gonser, 8; Barr, 1; Fanghor, 1; LaMonte — Sevier, 20; Jones, 7; Bennett, 17; Bybee, 23; Campbell, 6; Chaney, 2.

Bill Freehan of Detroit set an American League record in 1968. He was hit by opposing pitchers 24 times.

Warsaw Slips Past Versailles

WARSAW — Warsaw's Wildcats slipped by the Versailles Tigers in the fourth quarter for a final score of 64-62 Tuesday night.

Warsaw's varsity dominated the first quarter 19-14 but Versailles outscored the Wildcats in the second and third quarters to bring the score to 44-44 at the end of the third. Warsaw edged the Tigers in the fourth by two points.

Campbell scored 14 points for Warsaw in the "B" game and led them to a 38-27 victory over the Versailles junior varsity cagers. Eppwright took top honors for Versailles with 10.

Score by Quarters:

Warsaw	19	10	15	20—64
Versailles	14	13	17	18—62

Individual scoring — Warsaw: G. Martin, 9; Henderson, 28; Barb, 7; Bautton, 2; T. Martin, 12; Cobb, 6; Versailles: Benne, 9; Laurie, 24; Cable, 15; Schad, 3; Woolfey, 7; Klein, 2.

S-C Frosh, Sophs, Split Their Contests

Smith-Cotton's freshmen and sophomore cagers, coached respectively by Wes Sanders and Jim Shepherd, split their contests in Boonville play Monday night. The frosh dropped their game to the Boonville frosh 44 to 37, while the soph roundballers were victorious over Marshall 40 to 26.

High gun for the frosh was Doug Maples with 12 points and for the sophomores Steve Gerlecz with 18.

Because of the defeat of the freshmen Jeff City Jays at the hands of the Marshall Owls, Smith-Cotton tangles with the Jays Thursday at 5 p.m. for third place honors. At 8:30 p.m. Thursday, the Tiger sophomores go against the Pirates of Boonville for the soph championship.

Murdock Defeats Martin In Time Limit Mat Bout

For a while Tuesday night it looked like 20-year-old Tommy Martin, an ambitious lad with world title aspirations, would even his slate with a victory over Tornado Murdock, but the brawling Murdock managed to come back from a one-fall deficit to beat Martin in the best two of three falls or 60-minute time limit match.

Martin took the first fall at 13:10 with a reverse shoulder press. Murdock took the next two falls, first with an elbow drop and press at 2:10 and the second when Martin was unable to continue.

A special event, one-fall or 20 minutes, between Ronnie Etchison, from St. Joseph and Bobby Heenen, a newcomer from Chicago, Ill., saw Etchison pull out the match at 10:25 with an airplane spin and press.

In the semi-final, a novel midget tag team test between the team of Lord Littlebrook and Cowboy Lang and the team of Little Bruiser and Mighty Atom, the decision went to Lang and Littlebrook with a best two of three falls or 45 minute time limit victory.

Lang took the first fall over Mighty Atom at 10:50 with a body slam and press. Bruiser came back to pin Littlebrook at 5:10 with a knee lift and press, but Bruiser and Atom were disqualified to give Littlebrook and Lang the victory.

Tigers Face Hannibal On Friday

Another Central Missouri Conference cage contest will be fought Friday night on the Smith-Cotton court when the Tigers face the Hannibal Pirates, who at present boast an 8-5 record so far this season.

The "B" team contest will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by the varsity game at 8.

According to head Bengal coach, Paul Schwartz, the Pirates have a 1-1 conference record; the victory was scored over the hard fighting Mexico Bulldogs and the defeat suffered to Columbia Hickman. The starting varsity lineup for Hannibal includes Best and Weathers at guards, Coons at center, and Welch and Dean at forwards. The squad is lead by the outside shooting of Welch and Weathers and by the inside shooting of Coons. The leading rebounder is Dean.

The starting varsity lineup for the Black and Gold includes Nash and Woolery at forwards, Green and Logan at guards, and Tornquist at center. Skip Tornquist currently leads the Tiger team in both rebounds and in average points made per game. Skip has had 13.1 rebounds per game and has made 14.2 points average per game.

Considering Lombardi As Commissioner

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—The president of baseball's new Kansas City Royals said here Tuesday night he considers general manager Vince Lombardi of the football Green Bay Packers a leading candidate to become baseball's next commissioner.

Lombardi is a "sports man" who is "aggressive and intelligent" enough for the job, the Royals' Ewing Kauffman said at a meeting of the Olathe Chamber of Commerce.

"For these reasons, I think he will be one of the two or three candidates the owners will turn to when they can't agree on a baseball man too closely associated with one or the other of the leagues," Kauffman added.

Other top candidates to succeed William D. Eckert in the commissioner's post were listed by the Royals owner as Judge Robert Cannon, former major league player representative, and U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron (Whizzer) White.

Cannon would be his personal choice, Kauffman said, but he would vote to accept either White or Lombardi as a compromise candidate.

Baseball owners were unable to agree on a commissioner through 19 ballots at a Dec. 20 meeting, Kauffman pointed out.

At that time, he said, the leading candidates were Michael Burke, New York Yankees president, and Charles "Chub" Feeney, vice president of the San Francisco Giants.

Kauffman said he expects selection of a commissioner to be made during a joint meeting of the two major leagues Feb. 4 in Miami, Fla. He said notification of the meeting was received from American League headquarters three days ago.

MOORE TO LEAD ARMY

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Lynn Moore, Army halfback from Ponca City, Okla., will captain the Cadet football team next season.

Moore, who has played every Army game since the start of the 1967 season, was a versatile performer last season. He rushed for 348 yards, caught 18 passes for 188 yards, returned eight punts, returned 17 kickoffs and was third in team scoring with nine touchdowns for 54 points. One of his punt returns resulted in a 79-yard touchdown run.

More Ways to Clean Tarnished Pewter

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Like Sandra, I had some dull and tarnished pewter. I washed mine in a medium solution of baking soda and water. That was over two years ago and it is still as bright as pewter should be.—MRS. M. H.

DEAR POLLY—I want to help Sandra clean her tarnished pewter pitcher. Soap (not a detergent) and a sponge or cloth will do wonders. Old-fashioned yellow soap is the best and worked like magic on a couple of antique pewter spoons that were actually black. Hope this helps her as other Pointers have helped me.—DORITO

DEAR GIRLS—A soft luster is the desired result for cleaned pewter, not a high shine. Never use metal polish, only silver polish. You might try putting on the silver polish. While it is still wet, apply a heavy lather made with soap. Rinse in hot water, dry thoroughly and rub with a flannel polishing cloth—never use abrasives.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have a sofa slip cover that has a foam rubber backing. How do I launder it or should it be dry cleaned? Can it be put in the washer? Does one press such a cover with a steam iron or a regular one? Thank you for any help.—PUZZLED

DEAR POLLY—When traveling you can cut your initials out of reflective tape and stick them on your luggage. Thus among dozens of other bags, many alike, yours will stand out with much shine and glitter and be easy to spot. We tried this and it works.—JOHN

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is not timesaving but child-saving. When I discard a spray can such as most everything seems to come in, I pull off the little push button and throw it away at the same time so small children cannot figure out how to use them. It seems there is always one more spray left in a can after it has set for awhile. I discovered this after my three-year-old picked a can out of the wastebasket and sprayed the remaining contents in his eyes. They were most painful for quite a time. Keep up those wonderful Pointers. We homemakers can sure use them.—RAMONA

Super Question: Are Jets Best in AFL?

MURRAY OLDERMAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MIAMI, Fla.—(NEA)—The ultimate irony of the New York Jets as super-champions of the super-world of super-pro football is that they aren't definitively superior in their own province—the American Football League.

The Oakland Raiders are a better team overall, and the Kansas City Chiefs may be, too. The Jets did have, for the one game, the super-whip of Joe Namath. And the Baltimore Colts, measurably the best team in the National Football League, didn't have anything to match it.

That became evident to Gerry Philbin, who plays defensive left end for the Jets with All-Pro aplomb, on the first series of plays run in Miami's Orange Bowl.

"I saw our offensive line go down and hit and then the Colts went down," noted Gerry. And late in the first quarter, when George Sauer was hit and lost the ball on the Jet 12-yard line, Gerry noted the demeanor of the offense as it came off the field.

"No heads were down," he said. 'They just told us, 'Get the ball back.' "

"Us" was the defensive platoon of the New York Jets, the one with the weak secondary and the overmatched tackles and the obscure linebackers.

"We were the Number One team in our league on defense," mused Gerry, "but for two weeks before the game no one heard about us. We beat 'em physically. We almost shut them out. And we ran the ball down their throats."

The Jets did get the ball back, after the Sauer fumble, on an interception in the end zone, one of four perpetrated on the Colts. Then from the 20, Namath methodically marched the Jets 80 yards down the field to the touchdown which set the tone of superiority for the AFL—at least, for the one day.

He ran four running plays down the middle to move the Jets close to midfield, exploiting the way Winston Hill at left tackle shoved around old and ailing Ordell Braase on the Colts' right flank. Then Joe hit Bill Mathis on a second down safety valve for six yards, picking up a Colts' blitz. He threw a turn-in to Sauer for 14, a big third down play, came right back to Sauer on a square-out for 11. No two passes were the same. Joe defied the Colts with a running play up the gut, then another pass, a swing to Matt Snell, and the Jets, unbelievably, were inside the 10-yard line of the Super-Colts.

Matt Snell charged over right tackle for five big yards, right past 295-pound Bubba Smith. Then he slanted the other way to the vulnerable side of Colts, and bellied out for the four vital yards to the end zone.

Suddenly you are aware of the poise of the Jets, a collection of misfits only half a dozen years ago. You expected them to be nervous. But they made no mistakes. They never jumped offsides, didn't mess up handoffs or miss assignments. The offensive line did a job holding the Colts off Namath. And he picked up blitzes to burn the Colts and make them respect the Jets as a mature, competent unit.

Their touchdown meant the first lead ever held in a Super Bowl Game by an AFL team. Parity had been achieved. And maybe more.

Al Davis, the man who built Oakland into an AFL power, specified, "When they can't cover Sauer one-on-one, and we do it with Willie Brown, you have to wonder. When we play the Jets, we take the threat of a Snell away. The Colts weren't sure how to handle him. I'm not sure our league isn't better in certain areas."

If that's true, or even has a measure of verity, one pertinent fact about pro football emerges. There aren't any more super teams, and haven't been since the Green Bay Packers of a couple of years ago. Unless a coach gets ultra-lucky in retooling old players, like Vince Lombardi was in his early days at Green Bay, there aren't going to be any more super teams, with the current dilution of talent.

One draft choice out of 26 doesn't build a super team. What is needed for one game like the Super Bowl is the whip. Bart Starr was it for the Packers the first two games. Namath was it for the Jets this time.

In their own way, the Jets dominated the Colts almost as much as the Packers dominated the Chiefs and the Raiders. And Philbin answered a question sardonically: "The toughest games this year were against the Buffalo Bills when they beat us and Denver when they beat us."

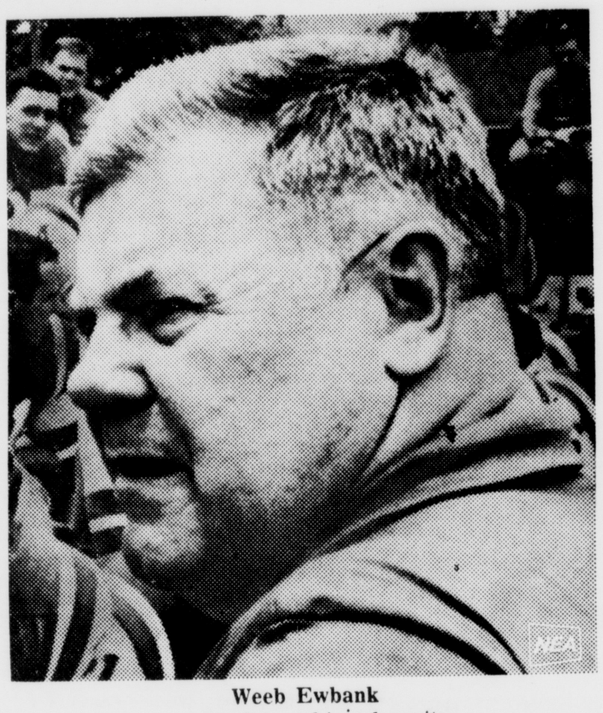

Namath was cynical about the applause: "The people cheering are the same people who were betting against us, who said we didn't have a chance."

Artistically, the Jets are still flawed by an insecure secondary. And they had a little luck riding with them against the Colts, who muffed valuable chances to turn the game around: A couple of possible interceptions for touchdowns, dropped passes, failure to spot an open receiver in the end zone just before halftime.

But the Jets were impressive in the way they went at the Colts physically and beat them down. Namath, on one of his greatest passing days, didn't bother to throw the ball in the last 11 minutes of the Super Bowl and used up four and a half important minutes in one spurt of ground possession. The defense, backed up against the one-yard line, made the Colts use four plays (including one negated by a penalty) and a lot of valuable time to put the ball in the end zone late in the game.

And speaking of time, the television people used up a lot, too. There were nine TV timeouts interrupting the normal flow of the game. On that score, NBC pulled even and maybe went ahead of CBS.

The Final Toll?

This huge bell, which has called thousands of Sedalians and former Sedalians to their classes at the old Broadway School, has sounded its final toll from its perch high in the school's bell tower, but its voice may not be silenced forever. The bell was lowered from the tower last week by workmen from the McCown Salvage Co. who are demolishing the building. McCown has received several offers for the 1,000-pound bell, but its final disposition has not yet been decided. (Democrat-Capital photo).

Russians Pull Out Of Hockey Series

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Russians — leaving themselves an opening for reversal — have pulled out of a scheduled series of hockey games in Canada, just as they cancelled the U.S. Russia track meets a few years ago.

The reasons, however, are entirely different.

The USSR cancelled the U.S. track meets in protest over American participation in Vietnam.

This time they say they won't play because the Canadian opposition they're scheduled to meet is inferior. The Ottawa or Winnipeg team, or a combination of both was slated to represent Canada. The first game was to be played in Montreal Friday.

Diplomats and hockey officials worked desparately to determine whether the Russian decision was based on a misunderstanding that could be cleared up quickly so as to permit start of the tour on schedule.

If it can't be cleared up, council members of the International Ice Hockey Federation were in a position to act on a cable from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association asking "immediate and full suspension" of the Soviety Hockey Federation for its "unprecedented" action.

Also left in doubt was the status of a proposed tour of the Russian B team, slated for Feb. 24 to March 7.

Further, international suspension would prohibit the defending champion Russian team from competing in the world hockey championship in Stockholm the last two weeks in March.

The Russians' coach, Anatoly Tarasnov has been angling to play National Hockey League teams. Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA, expressed the opinion that the NHL has no appetite for becoming involved with the Russians.

Meanwhile, Maple Leafs Garden said a sell-out of the 16,485 seats had been anticipated for Friday's game. Cancellation of the game and the tour would represent a loss of $35,000.

Hope Morris Will Preside Despite Losing His Power

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The Missouri Senate relieved Lt. Gov. William S. Morris of most of his powers Tuesday but Senate leaders said later they hoped he would continue to preside.

If he does, it would be only at the pleasure of the President Pro Tem, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, under new rules adopted by a 20-10 vote. Five Republicans helped push the majority past the 18 votes needed.

The rules give Blackwell final authority on assignment of bills to committee and ruling on points of order. Blackwell and Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, the majority floor leader, will serve automatically as ex-officio members of every committee.

The new rules were adopted only over the vigorous protests of Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, majority leader last session, and Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Clayton, the minority floor leader.

Waters said he was flabbergasted at the senate's action in kicking out long established traditions. He urged a calm approach and said the action could only widen the already existing gap in the senate between the so-called "Young Turks" and the "Old Guard."

Jones said the Senate would rue the day it ever adopted rules which he said would destroy the committee system and create the same kind of a legislative jungle as in the House, with floating members able to control every committee action.

Blackwell told the Senate all he wanted to do was insure orderly procedure and make sure the Senate would be in complete control of its own business without outside interference.

Chaparrals Loss String At An End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dallas Chaparrals' losing string has come to an end at 11, while the Oakland Oaks' winning string now has reached 13.

The Chaparrals ended an 11 game drought Tuesday night when they defeated Minnesota 102-101 with a basket two seconds before the overtime buzzer in their American Basketball Association game.

In other ABA action Indiana edged Houston in a thriller 116-113 and Oakland handily beat Los Angeles 132-106.

In the National Basketball Association All-Star game Oscar Robertson paced the East All-Stars to a handy 123-112 victory over their Western counterparts.

At Dallas the Chaparrals moved ahead in the third quarter and never again trailed until Steve Vacendak hit on a Pipers' free throw for 101-100 with 16 seconds left on the overtime clock.

Cincy Powell of Dallas then dumped in a 23-foot shot from the floor with two seconds showing. Connie Hawkins' 43 points for Minnisota was game high. Powell was second with 23.

At Houston Roger Brown tossed in a jump shot with two seconds left in regulation time and added two free throws after the clock ran out to pace the Indiana decision.

Willie Somerset of Houston topped all scorers with 35 points. Freddie Lewis and Brown led Indiana with 29 and 23 points each.

Oakland continued its winning streak with an easy victory over Los Angeles. The Oaks reeled off 10 consecutive points shortly after intermission and put it out of reach at 96-77. Doug Moe had 26 points and Gary Bradds 25 for the winners. George Stone led Los Angeles with 19.

Grid Players Coaches Down To Business

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Players and coaches of the National Football League Wednesday got down to the serious business of preparing for the annual East-West All-Star Pro Bowl Sunday.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys is in charge of the East and George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams the West.

Understandably, there were some rueful back glances at the Super Bowl and the upset by the New York Jets of the American league over the Baltimore Colts, 16-7.

Quarterback Earl Morrall of the NFL champion Colts, given an extra warm round of applause by the fans at the luncheon, said:

"You can't change the scoreboard. In the week coming up we've got to play a lot better. We're facing bettern material."

Morrall and Roman Gabriel of the Rams will guide the West, Don Meredith of Dallas and Fran Tarkenton of the New York Giants the East.

Cracked Tarkenton, "I'll have a hard time getting back into New York. It's Joe Namath's town now." He referred, of course, to the Jets' flambouyant quarterback.

Still a Thrill To Win Game

BALTIMORE (AP) — "It's still a thrill to win this one," Oscar Robertson said after he had led the East All Stars to a 123-112 victory over the West in the 19th annual National Basketball Association classic.

"Not the biggest thrill," he added, "but one of them."

Robertson provided plenty of thrills for the fans, though, as he turned in a brilliant all around performance which eawon him the most Valuable Player trophy.

Gene Shue, who coached the victorious East squad, attributed his side's victory to the East's greater height. "The West team was really small," the Baltimore Bullets coach said.

Asked if he agreed with the selection of Robertson as the game's Most Valuable Player, Shue replied:

"Of course I do. Oscar's the greatest. He can do so many things. We had a lot of great players out there, but Oscar is the greatest."

Shue said the East cinched the game in the final quarter "when our fast break was working to perfection with Oscar getting a couple of three-point plays. . ."

The East led comfortably at the quarter, 35-19, on the twisting jump shots of the Bullets' Earl Monroe, and the team work of Cincinnati's Jerry Lucas and the agressiveness of Boston's John Havlicek.

But the West, on the springy play of little Lennie Wilkens of Seattle and Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles closed the margin to seven at the half and finally pulled even midway in the third period. After the team passed the lead back and fourth for a time, they stood knotted, 77-77, with 3:39 left in the period.

Within two minutes, Wes Unseld rang up seven of his game total of 11 points and the east had an 86-83 bulge to carry into the last 12 minutes.

Things got tight again in the last five minutes, but Gus Johnson, Monroe and Havlicek pulled the East out of reach.

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Meadowhill's More Scents, basically a distance horse on grass, will attempt to carry high weight in the $25,000 added Royal Poinciana—opening day feature at Hialeah.

Hockey's New Breed: College Grads

Ira Berkow
NEA Sports Columnist

MONTREAL—(NEA)—Inside the dark bus Harry Howell streaked the frosty window with a long finger, and peered out. The nodding lights of the night highway blinked on and off in his lined, strong face.

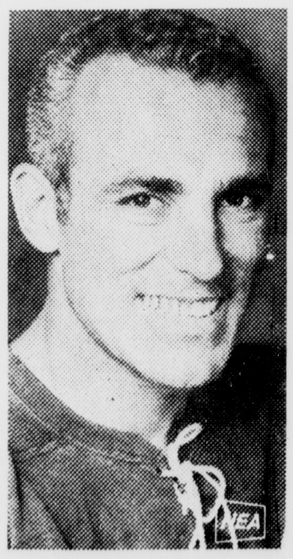

Howell sat in the rear of the chartered bus which was taking the New York Rangers from the airport to their Montreal hotel. A defenseman for 17 years in the National Hockey League, Howell is in the evening of his career.

Howell, 36, turned professional when he was 18 years old. He never went to college. He is staying on in the NHL because he knows he will never again make the kind of money (over $20,000 a year) he is earning now. (And, besides, his skills are still considerable.) Like most other NHL players, hockey has been his whole life. He has had no training in any other field. He has little idea what he will do upon retirement.

"It's not something I sit and worry about," said Howell, looking into the night. "I mean, I think about it. I have to. I have a wife and two children, 14 and 10 years old. But I'm not too worried. I know I'll get something, when the time comes. I don't know, maybe I'll be a salesman of some sort."

Seated across the aisle was Dennis Hextall, 25, recently called up from the Eastern League. Hextall is a rarity in the NHL. He is a college graduate, having received a bachelor's degree in natural science from North Dakota.

Hextall received several hockey scholarship offers after graduating from high school in Winnipeg. Old-timers told him what old-timers had told Harry Howell two decades before: "College is the kiss of death for a hockey player with pro ambitions." So Howell, who could have gone to Michigan State, turned pro.

Harry Howell

Dennis Hextall

. . . a contrast in futures

"I was told," said Howell, "that the pros would not even consider me a prospect if I went to college. First, college rules are different. There is no contact allowed in college, as compared to the rough checking game of the pros. Second, colleges only play 36 games a season. Junior leagues in Canada play twice that many. Third, competition isn't that good in college. The belief was that I could be getting more valuable experience playing in Canada.

"Looking back on it," said Howell, running a hand through his graying hair, "I know how fast four years can go. I would have done things differently."

Hextall, like most rookies, treads softly now, if inconspicuously. His boyish face is usually serious. He is trying to make the club.

"I wanted the college education," he said. "I also felt that if someone has the desire and the ability—and I think I have both—then that person could make it in the NHL. Sure, those four years in rougher competition would have helped. But I felt the so-called risk of college was worth it, and that I could overcome anything I missed."

Most professional hockey players come from Canada. Yet hockey scholarships are virtually nonexistent in Canadian colleges. Also, many of the players are of French descent. And, as Jean Ratelle of the Rangers said, "In the little Quebec town where I grew up, I spoke almost no English." So, of course, French-Canadians like Ratelle would not consider going to one of the handful of American colleges which do offer hockey scholarships. And these schools would not consider him.

In America, the university is the minor league for pro basketball and football and, increasingly, for baseball, too. Players must pick up something academic in four years of campus life, if only from osmosis. They are better prepared for post-athletic careers than are hockey players.

"Hockey players," super-star Gordie Howe has said in this context, "are a whole different breed." Howe, after 23 years with the Detroit Red Wings—and with only an eighth-grade education, recently got into the insurance business for security.

When this was mentioned to Howell, he said, "I'd sure like to know what I'll be doing in two or three years, when I retire. If you see Gordie, ask him if he's got a job for me." Howell smiled.

Across the aisle Dennis Hextall also has worries about the future. But of a different nature. "I want to stick with the Rangers, but if I don't I'll go back to Winnipeg and teach school," he said as the bus continued into the night.

OAKLAND LED AL HITTING

BOSTON (AP) — The Oakland Athletics, regarded as something less than sensational as hitters when they were known as the Kansas City Athletics, led American League teams in batting last season with a .240 mark. They beat the Minnesota Twins by three points.

In 1967 the Athletics batted .233 which ranked them seventh in league hitting.

Ann Landers

Son May Select Sightless Bride

Dear Ann: A dear friend of mine has asked me to help her. I don't know if I am capable of the task. She wants me to speak to her 25-year-old son — a handsome, brilliant lad (last year of law), fine family, social prestige, money, a marvelous future.

This young man could have had any girl in town, so he goes and selects a 24-year-old girl who is blind. Don't misunderstand, Ann, Rose is a nice enough person. She is pleasant looking and her eyes are not disfigured. To look at her one would think she is perfectly normal. I should mention, perhaps, that she graduated from a famous school of music and supports herself by teaching piano.

The young man says he is deeply in love, that Rose's blindness makes no difference to him, but I have an idea he is martyring himself. It might even be pity that he feels for her. What will happen if she gets pregnant? Will she be able to take care of a child? There are so many problems ahead he has not thought of, Ann. Please help me get through to him. — A FRIEND's FRIEND

Dear Friend: I hope you will stay out of it and not attempt to prevent what sounds like a beautiful marriage.

Rose might be a better wife to this young man than many girls with perfect vision. She sounds like a truly remarkable person. Your friend should be delighted to have her in the family.

How inspiring that in spite of her handicap the girl is planning for a full future. Her sightless eyes see beauty and fulfillment in the days ahead. The boy's mother is the one who is blind.

Dear Ann Landers: I am so stunned I don't know what to do or think. A friend just left my home. Over a cup of coffee she outlined all the things that are wrong with me. She did it "for my own good" because she is a "true friend."

I never thought I was perfect, Ann, but I didn't realize no one liked me and that a great many people whom I considered friends are laughing at me behind my back. Nor was I aware that my quietness was interpreted as stupidity and that it has hurt my husband in his profession because people lose respect for him when they meet his "dull wife."

The woman criticized my hair (old-fashioned), my clothes (too conservative), and she even had something to say about the car I drive.

What do you make of this? — STILL DAZED

Dear Still: I don't know what's eating the woman (I hesitate to call her a friend), but it must be something big.

This woman is destructive and I advise you to stay away from her.

County GOP Group Meets

CALIFORNIA — The Moniteau County Republican Club will meet in the Moniteau County Circuit Court room at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 17, to elect officers for the next two years.

The nominating committee will bring its report at the same time and other nominations may be made from the floor. Plans will also be made for the Lincoln Day meeting in February.

Aquatic duckweeds, submerged all winter, pop to the surface by filling themselves with buoyant gas. In the fall, they sink again to the bottom by taking on water ballast like a submarine.

Sappington Is Elected New President

CALIFORNIA — Edward Sappington, California, has been elected president of the Moniteau County Agricultural and Mechanical Society at a recent meeting of the new board of directors. Lewis Mills was elected vice-president; Mrs. Lewis Mills, secretary; and Mrs. Dorothy Howard, treasurer.

At the annual meeting of share holders, women were elected to serve on the board of directors for the first time in the history of the association. They are Mrs. Katherine M. Allee and Mrs. Lee Jane Meyer. The number on the board was increased from nine to 13 members.

Four members of the 1968 board were retained, Mr. Sappington, Mills, Brooks Volkart and Clarence Busch. The outgoing officers were Paul Bolinger, Alfred Hallford, Alvin Allee, Paul Clenin and Richard Spieler.

Other members serving on the board for the first time are J. D. Althoff, Willard Graham, Edward Kaiser, Robert Kueffer, Neil McBroom, Freddie Snyder and Jim Volkart.

Sappington and Mills were named delegates to attend the Missouri Association of Fairs with J. D. Althoff and Brooks Volkart as alternates.

Honor Busker For Work At MFA School

Fred Busker, formerly of 1503 South Stewart, is a graduate of a six-week District Sales Managers Training School held by the MFA Insurance Companies at its home office in Columbia. Busker received congratulations from MFA President A. D. Sappington on his successful completion of the school at a recent luncheon honoring the graduates. Busker was graduated with honors, named "Best Narrative Speaker" in the speech class segment of the extensive training course.

With his new designation of district sales manager for the Companies, Busker has been assigned to work with MFA Insurance Agents in the Mt. Vernon, Ill., area.

Holding a Winner

Surplus in LBJ Budget Tied to Keeping Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson submitted a farewell $195.3 billion spending budget today with a $3.4 billion surplus achieved through a proposal to extend the 10 per cent income surtax until June 30, 1970.

He used his final budget message to Congress to extoll the achievements of his administration and to recommend new government benefits for millions of Americans.

His most striking new proposal was for legislation to increase social security benefits an average 13 per cent with higher payroll levies to pay for them.

Declaring that the record of his five years in the White House "is an impressive one," Johnson said:

"We have witnessed a period of unprecedented economic growth, with expanded production, rising standards of living, and the lowest rates of unemployment in a decade and a half.

"Our military forces today are the strongest in the world, capable of protecting the nation against any foreseeable challenge, or threat.

"Last month saw man's first successful flight to the moon. In domestic matters, the legislative and executive branches, cooperatively, have forged new tools to open wider the doors of opportunity for a better life for all Americans."

The President said there had been "a record-breaking period of prosperity" for the last eight years covering his administration and that of John F. Kennedy.

This had brought, he said, an increase of 31 per cent in real per capita spendable income, adjusted for price increases, creation of 10 million more jobs, and a $24 billion rise in corporate profits after taxes.

But Johnson said recent sharp price rises underscored the need for a stronger effort to control inflation. He said this was one important reason for his proposal to continue the surtax. The other, he said, was uncertainty over the Vietnam war.

Though expressing hope that the Paris talks will bring peace, Johnson said it was still necessary to provide funds to continue the war through the next year.

Still, his proposed outlay of $25.7 billion for Vietnam in fiscal 1970 was a reduction of $3.5 billion from the current year.

Should the war taper off suddenly, Johnson said, it might be possible to make a different decision on the surtax. He recommended that President-elect Nixon be given power to eliminate it or reduce it as developments warrant, subject to a Congressional veto.

The budget sent to the Capitol today covers the 12 months beginning July 1. The figures and programs finally agreed upon will be the result of negotiations between a Congress controlled by Johnson's Democratic party and officials of the Republican administration which takes office Monday.

Nixon could submit broad new budget recommendations or could content himself with piecemeal suggestions for changes.

In addition to recommending bigger Social Security benefits, Johnson proposed that Medicare be extended to 2 million disabled persons, that an additional $2 billion be put into the state-run Medicaid program of health care for indigent families, that unemployment compensation payments be increased both in weekly amount and duration, and that new health protection be given low-income families starting with prenatal care for a mother through complete medical services during the first year of her child's life.

His proposal for a 13 per cent average boost in Social Security would include a basic 10 per cent increase for all 25 million Americans now on the rolls, a hike in the present $55 monthly minimum payment to $80 covering 2 million beneficiaries, and a $100 minimum for individuals who have paid Social Security taxes at least 20 years.

To finance this, the President recommended raising the present $7,800 taxable wage base to $9,000 and advancing by one yer, to Jan. 1, 1970, the next scheduled jump in the payroll tax rate from 4.8 per cent each for employer and employe to 5.2 per cent.

A year ago he estimated an $8 billion deficit for 1969 but his new budget projects a $2.4 billion surplus as well as the $3.4 billion surplus for 1970.

Part of this resulted from a booming economy which led to higher incomes and thus higher income tax yields than originally forecast, and part from the $6 billion cut in federal spending ordered by Congress when it passed the surtax.

He said its continuation along with extension of present excise tax rates on autos and telephone service, would bring in an additional $9.5 billion in 1970.

Actually, the surtax will yield considerably more revenue than that in 1970 because $4.7 billion will be collected by the Treasury in that year from surtax levies chargeable to income earned before this June 30 but not actually paid until after July 1.

The 10 per cent telephone excise and the 7 per cent auto levy are scheduled to drop to 5 per cent each Jan. 1, 1970. Johnson recommended that the present rates be kept for another year.

He renewed a previous recommendation for various transportation user taxes to bring in an additional $400 million a year. One of these would raise the air passenger ticket tax from 5 to 7 per cent.

Johnson said the higher Social Security taxes would yield an extra $1.7 billion in revenue. But this would be offset almost exactly by the $1.6 billion his proposed benefit increases would cost in 1970.

Even though he projected smaller outlays for Vietnam in the year ahead, the President included in his budget a slightly increased overall defense total, $81.5 billion for 1970 as compared with $81 billion in the present year.

Thus military spending would account for more than 41 per cent of his budget.

In explaining the $11.6 billion increase in the spending total projected for the next year as compared with fiscal 1969, Johnson said he faced many uncontrollable items in drawing up the budget. He listed $8.6 billion of such items including:

—$2.9 billion for payments under Social Security, Medicare and other social insurance programs as more people become eligible for benefits and costs rise.

—$1.6 billion for relatively fixed charges such as interest on the federal debt, veterans benefits, and public assistance.

—$1.3 billion for outlays arising out of prior year contracts for such things as highways, education facilities, and health and community development programs.

As in previous budgets, Johnson insisted the amount he was recommending "represents our minimum requirements to fill urgent needs at home and abroad."

Increases are focused on "urgent national problems— inadequate educational opportunities, slum housing, increased crime, urban congestion and decay, pollution of our air and water, lack of proper health care, and hunger and malnutrition."

Johnson said he carried out fully the $6 billion expenditure cut which the 1968 Congress ordered him to make.

Actually, he reported, programs covered by the law were slashed $8.4 billion. But items not covered, chiefly the Vietnamese war, increased in cost by $6 billion over his estimates of a year ago, he said.

Thus, he said, there was a net saving of $2.4 billion and his $186.1 billion spending figure submitted in January, 1968, for fiscal 1969 now is reduced to $183.7 billion.

Johnson said a cutback in federal employes to June 1966 levels ordered in the same law was not workable. He suggested that it be repealed.

In other budget highlights, the President recommended:

—That the President be given permanent authority, subject to Congressional veto, to raise or lower individual and corporate income taxes by some such figure as 5 per cent.

—That a new corporate form be set up to try to improve operations of the Post Office Department in line with recommendations of a special commission which investigated the agency.

—That the Office of Economic Opportunity, the anti-poverty agency, be extended two more years.

—That an Urban Development Bank be established to provide financing for public facilities in hard-pressed cities.

—That a lottery system be instituted in the military draft.

—That a $1.6 billion supplemental money bill be passed soon by Congress for the Defense Department in the current year, chiefly to pay for higher Vietnam war costs.

Budget of $81.5 Billion For Defense is Sought

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress Tuesday to spend $81.5 billion for defense in the coming fiscal year, slightly reducing Vietnam costs but warning of the need to "counter a wide range of potential military threats."

His spending proposals for the 1970 fiscal year topped those of the current year by $500 million, despite a cut of $3.4 billion in the cost of supporting 639,000 fighting men in Southeast Asia.

Vietnam alone accounts for nearly one-third of the proposed military spending, but the accent in Johnson's final defense budget is on beefing up the fighting power of forces elsewhere in the world and on developing new weapons and equipment.

He urged the increased defense spending—the largest in any year since World War II—to continue the military "momentum achieved during the last eight years."

The President attributed reduction in Vietnam spending to "changing combat patterns and revised supply requirements." Large-scale operations have been reduced and the bombing of North Vietnam has been halted.

But his proposal to finance an additional 5,000 men by June 30, 1970, in the Southeast Asian area including Thailand, the Philippines and support bases farther afield, held no hint of beginning a phased manpower cut from Vietnam, as has been rumored in Saigon.

The new budget, subject to changes by the Nixon administration and the Congress, provides for 3,455,000 men and women in uniform on active duty, 32,000 below peak strength in the current year.

The Army will absorb most of the cut, 26,000, mostly through the release of reserves. The Air Force will drop 8,000, more than offsetting a 2,000 increase for the Marine Corps and a near 1,000 net rise in Navy manpower.

The Army will have the same number of divisions—18—and its air unit roster is unchanged at 218. The Marine Corps will field the same four divisions and three air wings as it does in the current year.

The budget will enable the Navy to sail its present 15 attack aircraft carriers. It will have one less antisubmarine carrier and air group and 16 fewer amphibious assault ships. But the operating fleet of nuclear-powered attack submarines will expand from 41 to 47 next year.

The outlay program covers Air Force costs to operate the first two squadrons of the new C-5a jumbo-size air transports, buy more FB-111 fighter-bombers and short range missiles for that aircraft, and 24 squadrons of B-52's. Thirty squadrons of the big bombers are now in service.

The cost of running the Selective Service system next year is pegged just under the current $70 million annual level "despite an anticipated increase in draft calls."

Johnson reminded Congress of his earlier "intention to develop a fair and impartial random system of selection" for drafting men, a plan thwarted by Congress in 1967. He used his farewell budget message to plead for a law providing for a variation of a lottery system for selecting men to bear arms.

In other areas covered by the defense budget, the President called for a slight increase, to $551 million, in military aid, and a $120 million rise in Atomic Energy Commission outlays, to $2.6 billion, for improved nuclear weapons and atomic power plants for warships in fiscal 1970.

Partly offsetting increased spending in most defense fields are proposed cuts in outlays for military construction, dependents housing and civil defense.

Riley Is Retained As Superintendent

CALIFORNIA — The California R-1 Board of Education has re-employed Dr. George A. Riley as superintendent for the 1969-70 school year.

The board accepted the resignation of teacher's aid Nancy L. Donahoe and employed Mrs. Louis Keene to fill the vacancy.

'Millard Fillmore Day' Just Not Catching On

BALTIMORE, MD. (AP)—Despite the valiant efforts of Jeffry Amdur, Millard Fillmore Day has once again come and gone—unnoticed.

Fillmore, in case you've forgotten, was the 13th President of the United States. And if you have forgotten, Jeffrey Amdur and his Society for the Glorification of Millard Fillmore haven't.

Fillmore, for example, says Amdur, was "The only 13th President we ever had. That in itself was significant."

Amdur, a sophmore at Loyola College in Baltimore, helped found the society two years ago when he was a high school senior because he just thought that "Millard Fillmore deserves better."

His response could not be described as terrific.

"People come to me and ask me who is Millard Fillmore," Amdur said. "They think he's a second-string linebacker for the Jets or something."

But just look at what Fillmore did:

"He was, after all, the president who installed the first bathtub in the White House.

"And he had the foresight to install running water along with it. Warm water, too!

"He had the courage to be number 13. Whereas, George Washington, for example, didn't."

Amdur also noted that Fillmore commanded the Buffalo National Guard in both the Mexican and Civil wars.

"Even though neither of these wars came close to Buffalo, I believe he would have been ready," Amdur said.

When was Fillmore's birthday?

Jan. 7, 1800.

Eskimos of eastern Greenland recognize a family of winds. Nekrayak, the father, blows from the northeast; wife Pittarak fancies the northwest; son Kadannek prefers the southeast, and daughter Pouwanguartek springs from the southwest.

Nature Continues to Say 'No'

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

Ninety-seven times within one startling, dramatic year, men and women said to surgeons, "Yes, you may cut out my heart."

And 97 times, surgeons said, "Yes, we are ready," and 97 times relatives of dead or dying persons said, "Yes, you may take his heart."

But in "Year Two" of human heart transplants, Nature is still saying, "No."

For it is Nature's law that a human body should reject "foreign" tissue, whether it be a virus or a borrowed heart.

Most significantly, they won it through a new challenge of keen and dedicated effort to repeal Nature's ancient law.

Victory in this challenge could bring fantastic benefits, besides making possible the permanent transfer of all manner of body organs.

Cancer might lose its horror. Human resistance might be so increased against a person's own cancer that a small tumor never need keep on growing and spreading in lethal march. It simply would not matter that a person had such a small cancer. He would remain healthy despite it.

Seldom have human dramas of life, death and medicine been so accentuated as with the advent of transplanting of the human heart.

In "Year Two," heart transplantation will go on, even perhaps at a higher rate, most heart surgeons agree.

But they express a general sense that transferring hearts is not the real answer. Some see totally artificial hearts as a better future solution. And all, along with medical specialists, agree the best ultimate answer is to learn how to prevent heart diseases and heart attacks in the first place.

And there are poignant problems of supply and demand.

The clock ticks on while a young man, fair-haired, handsome, lies on a narrow bed at Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn, N.Y., his healthy heart throbbing sturdily.

He lives on oblivious to the medical skills, the breathing machine, the artificial feeding that have kept him alive since last June when a severe head injury plunged him into deep coma.

When and if he dies, his wife has said "Yes," his heart can be given to someone else.

But the time is not now. For one second of the clock tick, his eyelids flutter when Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz lightly pinches his arm and shouts his name.

Four people who could have used his heart have died in other rooms of this same hospital during those months. No one can say whether the young man might recover, to health or to doom as a vegetable.

While the public may have been astounded when Dr. Christiaan Barnard gave Louis Washkansky a new heart Dec. 3, 1967, in Cape Town, other surgeons knew it was but a matter of time before he or someone else would transfer a living human heart.

For 10 years before, surgeons had been working out the technique by transplanting dog hearts, among them Dr. Norman E. Shumway of Stanford University, Drs. David Hume and Richard Lower of the Medical College of Virginia, and Kantrowitz.

And they had built upon years of ever more daring surgery to repair hearts, with thousands upon thousands of persons now alive through triumphs in open-heart surgery.

And they had, further to go on, increasing success and survival in hundreds of persons given borrowed kidneys.

The time had come. Chance made it Dr. Barnard and not someone else to make the breach from animal to human hearts.

Slowly, then later in bursts, came dozens of transfers, finally 97 within 12 months—counting two men who received third hearts—in 16 countries, with a 17th, Israel, becoming represented last Dec. 5.

As of Dec. 3, 45 of the first year's 97 patients were then still alive, the star being Dr. Philip Blaiberg, South African dentist who received a heart Jan. 2.

Dr. Denton Cooley of Houston, Tex., who has performed more heart transplants than anybody else, thinks this second year will witness more transplants, and "the initial survival rate will increase significantly. Too many have died in the first week. We should be very selective, making sure no other procedure would improve the patient's condition."

To assess results, to learn why some patients fare well and others badly, to avoid repetition of mistakes at one center from being duplicated at another, the National Heart Institute is sponsoring a national and international registry to record treatment and results in all heart transplants, for use by all medical scientists.

The first year dashed initial hopes that Nature might be less a naysayer to heart transplants than to kidney transplants.

"The heart rejects like crazy," Dr. Shumway comments. And there are signs that, even if a recipient passes the initial crises of rejection, a delayed rejection phenomenon is waiting in the wings. The second year may be more critical than the first.

Rejection remains the greatest roadblock. Arterial tissues and valves of the borrowed heart become inflamed in reaction to the host's white cells and blood.

So far, only an uneasy truce has been maintained between tolerance of the graft and defense against disease. Donor and recipient can be matched for blood types, and for tissue types, and most specialists are convinced a good tissue match is essential. On the other hand, Blaiberg was not a really good match with his donor, and no one is sure why his borrowed heart has kept going so well.

Present drugs to suppress the organ rejection mechanism—while keeping a person safe from ordinary disease—are more like a sledgehammer approach than a fine, differentiating tool. One important addition is ALG, antilymphocytic globulin, but it also brings its own problems of possible sensitization to the horse serum from which it is made. Research continues to perfect a better ALG.

The rejection threat has kept most heart recipients on short tether—close to their hospital for periodic checkups with a battery of tests to detect the possible beginning of rejection, and then immediate use of drugs to suppress it.

Cancer is a "foreign" tissue that might come under control. Better understanding of immune reactions could help in control of a host of other diseases, including arthritis, asthma and kidney diseases.

And, in transplanting organs, it might become possible to jump between species, safely, without rejection. Animals could become a huge source of vital organs now in short supply.

The concept of donating one's heart touched a wellspring of compassion—healthy people expressed the wish to have their hearts used, and relatives of the dead have been responsive.

Still, there is only about one donor heart for each 100 persons who might benefit. And, too frequently, one hospital has a donor, but no recipient waiting at the moment.

This problem of supply is being approached in several ways:

One is establishment of regional procurement centers, for hearts as well as other organs, in Los Angeles, Boston, and Richmond. Hospitals share a list of waiting recipients, against the appearance of suitable donors.

Second is research to preserve hearts in viable form, either within the deceased body by maintaining circulation, or through special portable chambers that keep the isolated heart and lungs functioning for hours after removal.

States are passing or considering a Uniform Anatomical Gift Act that would permit anyone over 18 to stipulate he wishes to give all or any part of his body for transplantation or other medical use, and that would remove legal bans against interstate shipment of body organs.

Not so with the lonely, sole heart.

"It's an all-or-nothing affair. You must define the ethical and moral margins about removing a recipient's heart much more closely," Dr. Michael DeBakey of Houston points out.

The high cost of transferring hearts can become a severe problem, if the practice spreads. Costs of individual transplants have ranged up to $50,000 with most patients so far being little out of pocket. Research funds, volunteered surgical service, insurances, philantropic contributions, have all helped.

But on costs, one counter argument is that the price of a single transplant is enough, however paid, to educate four medical students who in their lifetimes would treat thousands of sick people.

Totally artifical hearts, mass produced to insert into human chests, remain another goal. One prime hangup is to find biological materials that will not react with the complex chemistry of human blood so that clots form.

In Good Heart

Dr. Philip Blaiberg is the longest surviving heart transplant patient. His operation was performed on January 2, 1968, by Dr. Christian Barnard, in Capetown, South Africa. Left, he talks to Dr. Barnard on March 16, 1968, leaving the hospital to go home. Right, in October, 1968, he was out for a walk in a Capetown street.

Scout News

Boy Scout Troop 59, sponsored by the Wesley United Methodist Church, participated in rifle range instruction at Whiteman Air Force Base recently.

Under the direction of T.Sgt. Emmit Fillmore and Philip Allen, an N.R.A. instructor, the troop learned the fundamentals of rifle fire.

Scouts instructed were: Harry Burford, Jr., Richard Brummett, David Cromley, Steve Fisher, Wiley Hausam, Randy Mitchell, Steve Steen and Patrick Turner.

The girls have been making several trips to various points of interest in Sedalia. These include the Pettis County Courthouse and the Sedalia Democrat newspaper plant. These trips are part of the requirements for the "My Community" badge, and the "Magic Carpet" badge. The troop is planning trips to the new Post Office and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. building in the near future.

The annual Christmas party was held at the home of Mrs. Gene Landon. The girls exchanged gifts and sang Christmas carols. Punch and cookies were served.

Members of the troop who made the tour: Sherry Lewis, Carol Wiesing, Diane Huerter, Lorie Gann, Susan Rayl, Becky Fischer, Susan Wingerter, Cindy Grott, Peggy Ward and Debbie Arens. Also making the tour were, Julie Rayl and Fanet Fischer, sisters of two of the scouts.

Touching Final Bow By LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — He came down the center aisle to rising applause, a tall man nodding from side to side, somewhat awkwardly as if he had never really known how tall.

He mounted the podium with the old politics of Hubert Humphrey and John McCormack behind him and the new politics of Ted Kennedy and George McGovern before him. McCormack looked misty; Humphrey, grateful; Kennedy, chin in hand, solemn; McGovern, pleasantly skeptical. In his seat, Russell Long looked like he was late for a poker game.

Up in the gallery on his left, Lady Bird Johnson stood with her daughters, tears in her eyes, acknowledging the applause—for the last address her husband would make before a joint session of Congress. She had been there for the first one, the one five days after Dallas, when he pleaded for unity and asked that "God shed His grace on thee and crown thy good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea."

Tuesday night brotherhood still seemed an elusive target in a land so divided four years after Lyndon Baines Johnson won the greatest landslide in history—that he renounced in the name of unity further claims on the White House.

He began patiently, slowly, gently, hands clasped before him on the lectern, almost funereally and one expected him to address the "dearly beloved." He stepped up his pace, warmed to his task and to his accomplishments, like a man speeding up the movie, hoping the happy ending would catch up with the wobbly beginning. Judging by the repeated applause, it did.

He cited the progress of the economy and defended his social legislation and when he spoke of conservation of the "reality of shores and parks, forests and mountains" he was looking again to the gallery on his left, looking intently through his glasses at his wife, and there was applause.

"I regret more than any of you know," he said with a small sad smile, "that it has not yet been possible to restore peace to South Vietnam." In the first row, Dean Rusk and Clark Clifford looked grim and, perhaps, helpless. But there was applause for his claim that the prospects for peace in Vietnam were now better than in more than four years—the same peace that eluded him and finally undid him. And there was rising, warmer applause when as commander in chief, he paid "personal tribute" to the fighting men, and in so doing he looked again to his left, to his married daughters.

At the end, he turned to the Democrats on his right and admitted his reason for appearing in person was "just pure sentimental."

"Most of my life as a public official," he said, "was spent in this building. For 38 years—since I worked here as a doorkeeper in the House of Representatives—I have known its halls and most of those who walk them." He looked to the gallery on the right where he once had been doorkeeper.

He invoked, as you knew he would, the names of Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower and the memory of John Kennedy. Nor did he forget his great mentor, Sam Rayburn. He acknowledged, too, a personal debt to Hubert Humphrey, and the applause was so great, Humphrey rose to acknowledge it—too late for the electoral college.

At the end, he added, "I hope it may be said, a hundred years from now, that together we helped to make our country more just for all its people—as well as to insure the blessings of liberty for our posterity. I believe it will be said that we tried."

They rose and applauded him at the close and he left, nodding awkwardly from side to side as if, many thought, he had never really known how tall.

Gold Leaps In Price To Record

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold jumped 35 cents on the London free bullion market to an alltime peak today, apparently on uncertainty over the policy of President-elect Nixon and general distrust of paper money.

The morning fixing set the price for the metal at $42.75 an ounce. This compared with Tuesday afternoon's fixing of $42.40.

Dealers said there was a complete lack of sellers and strong demand. Turnover was virtually nil.

"In this situation the price just had to go up," one dealer said.

Buyers seemed anxious to change their paper money into solid gold in advance of today's American budget and Nixon's inaugural speech next Monday, dealers said. Many believe this may give some clue to future U. S. policy toward bullion.

They recall last month's news conference by Nixon's treasury secretary-designate, David Kennedy, who declined comment when asked if the United States would continue its gold price policy. Any upward move would mean big profits for gold speculators.

For these same reasons, the informants said, bullion owners were unwilling to sell.

In the London foreign exchange market, meanwhile, the pound sterling edged upward two points to $2.3855 after Tuesday's 11-point drop in reaction to poor December foreign trade figures. Trade was only moderate today, however.

On the Zurich free market, the gold price reached $42.60-$42.80 per ounce at noon, the highest since the creation of the two-tier markets last March.

Banking sources explained this was caused by purchasing orders particularly from outside Switzerland, reflecting a certain uneasiness on the international monetary market, but declined to name any country.

The informants said turnover was small in Zurich, with most gold owners holding back for a still higher price.

After the Ordeal

"I talked to God," said a 57-year-old woman who was nailed in a closet for five days without food or water. Miss Ann Petroski, St. Louis, was freed by police after being held prisoner in the closet by a part-time handyman who worked for her. (UPI)

Reports Hickel Settled An Income Tax Claim

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Tuesday that secretary of interior-designate Walter J. Hickel, the governor of Alaska and a former Kansan, agreed in 1963 to pay $26,235 for a federal income tax deficiency.

Involved in the case, the newspaper said in a dispatch from Washington, were taxes from 1953. The Post-Dispatch said the government contended that Hickel and his wife, Ermalee, owed $64,095.

U.S. Tax Court records in Washington indicated the Hickels agreed to a stipulation calling for payment of a $26,235 deficiency plus a $2,425 penalty for what federal officials called a substantial underestimation" of tax, the Post-Dispatch said.

According to the newspaper's story, another paragraph of the tax court's records said the Hickels owed nothing under a section of the internal revenue code providing penalties for negligence or intentional disregard of tax filing rules.

Routine destroying of records in tax cases after periods of five years precluded the ferreting out of more details on the federal tax claim against the Hickels and their response, the Post-Dispatch said.

The judge who signed the case, Arnold Raum of the U.S. Tax Court, was reported by the story to have no recollection of the settlement. The agreement was apparently made in Seattle, Wash., the story said.

A Seattle attorney who represented the Hickels in the case, F. A. Lesourd, was quoted by the Post-Dispatch as calling it a "straight tax case" in which the settlement was reached at the suggestion of the presiding judge.

In Washington, Hickel's attorney, Roger Cremo, was reported unavailable for comment.

Hickel, 49, is considered one of President-elect Nixon's most controversial cabinet nominees. He amassed wealth in hotel, real estate and other business ventures after going to Alaska in 1940.

Market Men to Gather And Discuss Problems

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—In one vast hotel room later this month will be assembled representatives of at least $300 billion of assets, most of which are in securities. These are the men who make the stock market move.

Among the 2,000 money managers will be insurance men, mutual and pension fund portfolio managers, bankers, trust fund administrators, heads of nonprofit foundations. The event: The Second Annual Institutional Investor Conference.

The common interest of all will be common stocks, for in these days of inflation and technological change, investors once willing to make a few per cent a year are now going after 10 to 100 per cent. In some respects it's a mad race.

Mutual funds, for example are geared to "performance." This means they ill take bigger risks and trade in-out more often in order to show their quarterly reports that they're doing better than the next fund.

This, of course, attracts a lot of attention to the winner, and soon the winner is buried in an avalanche of orders. One mutual fund this year had to suspend operations while its clerks frantically recorded new orders. It was doing too well.

This isn't the only fate of the highly successful performer. Some of the best young funds at tract so much money that they can't find suitable investment opportunities. And so they, too fall behind in the race.

Nevertheless, the highly publicized performance of the funds has put other institutions on the spot. Most of them have been forced to blow the dust off old securities and take greater risks for greater profits. Because of their activities, Gustave Levy, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, estimated recently that as much as 50 per cent of all trading on the Big Board is by institutions rather than individuals.

This steady reduction in power of the individual has created serious problems of regulation and ethics. The stock market today is hardly one of random trading, the consequences of which are now being studied by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

A check at the SEC documents this growing concentration of stock ownership and stock market activity. Since 1958, private parties have been selling direct their holding of stocks: the institutions have been big buyers.

Foreign and domestic individuals still accounted for 66.5 per cent of all stock ownership up to June 30, 1968, according to the SEC, the breakdown being $462.5 billion owned by Americans and $23.2 billion by foreigners.

Most individuals, however, are investors rather than speculators or short term traders. They wouldn't care nor understand how to turn over their portfolios by the week or month or year. Instead they buy for several years, even decades.

Because of more frequent trading, the following SEC estimates of stock ownership are even more significant than they appear:

Personal trusts, $78.4 billion or 10.7 per cent of all stock—common and preferred, listed on exchanges or traded over the counter.

Investment companies, or mutual funds, $54.1 billion or 7.4 per cent.

Private, noninsured pension funds, $54 billion or 7.4 per cent.

Foundations, such as Ford and Rockefeller, $15.2 billion, or 2.1 per cent.

Property and casualty insurance companies, $13.6 billion or 1.9 per cent; life insurance companies, $11.8 billion or 1.6 per cent.

College endowments, $8.4 billion or 1.1 per cent; common trust funds, $4 billion of 0.5 per cent; state and local trusts or pensions, $4.8 billion or 0.7 per cent; banks, $2 billion or 0.3 per cent.

Now if money meant freedom from problems this conference would be dull, but instead there is at least one major problem per billion dollar of assets. This is a young and growing investment trend.

So young is it, in fact, that the sponsor is a two-year-old magazine, The Institutional Investor, headed by a 27-year-old publisher, Gilbert Kaplan. It ought to be a great party.

State Share Of Budget Is Figured

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Missourians will pay $4.25 billion in the coming fiscal year to finance the federal government if President Johnson's announced $195.3 billion budget is adopted by congress, the Missouri Public Expenditures Survey reported today.

That's more than $1 out of every $4 in personal income. The survey, a taxpayers' organization, urged "continued restraint in spending" to help ease the problem of inflation.

Missouri's share of the federal budget is figured at 2.18 per cent, the survey said.

'Hot Leads' In Cancer Research

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Cancer researchers are getting some hot leads on the cause of cancer in human beings, a leading doctor said here Tuesday.

Dr. Robert J. Huebner, Chief of the National Cancer Institute's viral carcinogenesis branch, said, "We have an awful lot of leads now to look at the human problem."

Huebner, who was here to speak to University of Oklahoma medical students, said studies have linked a particular virus with tumors in animals, and that same virus recently was identified in a human cell.

"This was the first time it had been positively identified, and it gives us confidence. If it is in one human, it must be in others," he said.

So Long, Brother Kelly

Brother Kelly.

Brother George.

That's the way we used to address each other or refer to each other to friends or new acquaintances. The practice must have started after we passed the era when blond, and curly-headed Kelly rode the street cars free all around town, and when George was just plain Junior.

Both of us grew up in the old home at 724 West Third street where the parents and four boys moved in 1907.

It must have been in the street car days when Kelly's strong point of making friends began, a characteristic developed in his contact with the motormen who ran the street cars from the Missouri Pacific shops to Liberty park and back, up and down Ohio street, out Thirteenth street, on Sixteenth and to the State Fair grounds. Motormen got to like Kelly, so he always had free transportation.

Thereafter for 59 years with increasing emphasis the name Kelly in newspaper and political circles in his home town and county and throughout Missouri became synonymous with Sedalia.

Temperamentally Kelly had a short fuse. When centered on an opinion in the fields of sports, politics or other subjects he spoke his piece without equivocation. His opponents respected him because of his forthrightness.

There was another noteworthy and beneficent aspect in the life of Kelly, his native ability to do things for other people who were in need of help, to break through red tape and obstacles too formidable for them to conquer. He beat down barriers for the lowly and for others too timid to do it themselves.

At 63 time started running out on Kelly. After a heart attack he could not stay away from a grandson's wedding in Texas anymore than he could stay away from another of the many Missouri inaugurals he attended in Jefferson City as a governor's honorary colonel.

So Monday he went to the last one where he met his old time and new friends in the morning parade and the evening grand march of the inaugural ball in the state capitol building.

Dressed in colonel's uniform and accompanied by his wife he was in the height of glory in an atmosphere where he was sincerely and cordially greeted by so many acquaintances with "There goes Kelly!"

As one devoted friend remarked, for two days he had not seen a happier man among the thousands at the inaugural. It was his day even though the last. If he had to go, he wouldn't have had it any other way. This would have been his comment to Brother George.

So long, Brother Kelly, see you later.

Hickel Hedges Federal Appointment

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Various nicknames have been coined for Walter J. Hickel, the would-be Secretary of the Interior. Because of his generosity in handing out concessions to oil companies in Alaska, one nickname is "Help-Yourself-Hickel." But senators who have made an investigation of the Hickel record think that equally appropriate is "Leap-Before-You Look" Hickel.

The latter is derived from Hickel's purchase of a Swedish ferry boat for use in Alaskan coastwise waters when it was obvious such use would be a violation of the Jones act prohibiting foreign built vessels from plying in coastal trade.

One case was his attempt to prevent the Eskimo Fishing Cooperative at Bethel from selling its salmon to a Japanese freezer ship. Despite the fact that the law specifically gave the Eskimos the right to sell their catch to whomever they wanted and the Japanese ship had been cleared by the State Department for Alaskan trade.

—Two-Job-Hickel—

Apparently Hickel fears he may not be confirmed or that confirmation may be delayed; so he wants to hang on to his job as governor of Alaska.

This, however, is clearly against the Alaskan constitution, which states: "The governor shall not hold any other office. . ."

Hickel also ignored the law when he appointed Harold Strandberg, commissioner of public works, despite the fact that Strandberg had been a member of the legislature which voted to increase the salary of the commissioner of public works. For a legislator or a congressman to take a job for which he has voted a salary increase is against the Constitution.

However, Hickel carefully waited until the legislature had adjourned so Strandberg's appointment could not be challenged. When Joe La Rocca broke the story in the Fairbanks News-Miner, Hickel had his 28-year-old Attorney General Kent Edwards, write an opinion white-washing the appointment. However, it's now being challenged by a tax-payers' suit and remains illegal just the same.

Another case where Hickel put himself above the law was when he tried to remove Clem Tillion of Halibut Cover from the Northwest International Fisheries commission's advisory board because he proposed increasing the severance tax on oil companies in Alaska. The oil companies had been paying only two percent. The University of Alaska, after a study, recommended a severance tax of ten percent. Tillion, a Republican member of the Alaskan legislature, proposed a two percent increase.

Hickel, a great champion of the oil companies was so irate at Tillion his fellow Republican, that he wrote a letter to the Interior Department in Washington — which he will head next week — recommending that Tillion be fired from the fisheries advisory board. Tillion is a commercial king crab and salmon fisherman, eminently qualified to sit on the fisheries board. So the Interior Department refused.

—Credibility Gap—

To make matters worse, Hickel's office, when queried by the Fairbanks News-Miner, flatly denied that he had written the letter. Later Sen. Bob Blodgett produced a copy of the letter. The governor, however, never retracted his denial.

In his new job as Secretary of the Interior, Hickel will be able to fire Clem Tillion, as he will also be able to ladle out oil leases with no questions asked.

Gov. Hickel also ignored a highway construction bond issue law voted by the people of Alaska in 1960 to build a highway from Fairbanks to Nome with $1,000,000 of state funds plus $19,000,000 of federal funds. Instead he is now building a winter trail to the north slope to help the oil companies.

This is in direct violation of the law which states "It is the intent of the state to participate with mineral developers (in this case the oil companies) on a 50-50 matching basis."

Furthermore says Sen. Bob Blodgett, D-Teller, "State law provides that construction expenditures exceeding $20,000 shall be on a competitive bid contract basis.

"Gov. Hickel took the $1,000,000 general obligation bond issue dedicated to the ferry and the road bond program," said Sen. Blodgett. He did this incidentally, without an OK from the legislature, but after a few individual phone calls to legislators. . .

During his career as a very successful private businessman in Alaska, Hickel was constantly complaining about the dictatorial methods of government. When he became governor of Alaska he adopted the dictatorial methods he had complained about.

The most amazing incident in the career of Hickel however was his purchase of a $7,000,000 Swedish ferry boat which was against the law to use in Alaskan coastal water.

DALLAS MORNING NEWS: Boost in Water. — Water supplies of two nations are getting a big boost. Sluice gates were closed at Amistad Dam on the Rio Grande and more than 1.75 million acre-feet of water will be stored before Aug. 1. Eventually, the United States and Mexico will gain 5.6 million acre-feet of needed water from this joint project just above Del Rio and Ciudad Acuna.

That is more than was stored in all the reservoirs of Texas in 1940. It is almost equivalent to adding six man-made lakes as large as Garza-Little Elm. Four hundred White Rock Lakes wouldn't fill Amistad.

Falcon Lake, not far away on the Rio Grande, has recently had its storage capacity increased to 2,767,000 acre-feet, roughly three times that of Garza-Little Elm. Both of these international lakes are developments of the International Boundary and Water Commission set up by the governments of Mexico and the United States.

These enterprises reflect the good relations between two neighbors who once were less than neighborly. Togetherness of this type is immensely profitable; it conserves a basic resource, while bolstering the agriculture and economy of the friendly cooperators.

Americans and Mexicans need to continue such cooperation and to search new spheres for mutual advancement. Texans, more than citizens of any other state north of the Rio Grande, should be in the forefront as major beneficiaries of that teamwork.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

John F. Jud, for the past 22 years with the Krey Packing Co., St. Louis, has purchased the Burnett Packing Co., on the West Main St. road and has assumed management. E. A. Burnett who established the plant in 1931 will continue to make Sedalia his home.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Sedalia's new fire truck narrowly escaped being in a serious mishap when the 10,000 pounds of car and equipment plunged into a water hole in the 1000 block on North Osage avenue. The driver Jess Krupinski was bringing the truck from St. Louis for delivery when he encountered a car parked in the street and trying to avoid it drove over a hole in the street covered with ice which gave way. James Atkinson, city engineer, Homer Hall and several others helped to extricate the truck.

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

On dit, has it there is a new bawdy house opened out on Main street. Should this prove true, we hope to see it shermanized at once. Our city's fame is bad enough without encouraging any more of these "matrons."

Democratic Flub: Losing O'Brien's Political Savvy

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Lawrence F. O'Brien's departure from the national political scene signals the temporary end of a career in organizational politics which somehow never was allowed to reach the peak it was clearly destined for.

Probably not in this century has there been in either major party a man more suited by ability, energy, temperament and training for what ought to be in every case the exacting responsibilities of a national chairmanship.

But after 16 years of laboring in the political vineyards, much of that time in behalf of presidents or presidential candidates, O'Brien found it his fate to gain the Democratic chairmanship only at a very late hour in the 1968 campaign —with just two months to perform a near-miracle and try to elect Vice President Humphrey.

What he, in fact, inherited on Sept. 1, 1968, was an incredible wreckage which, by some curious reasoning, had originally been expected to serve an incumbent, President Johnson, and was not even fit for that, let alone supporting a successor nominee.

Having been described by the late President Kennedy as the "best elections man in the business," O'Brien looked in 1960 to be the wisest possible choice for the new president's national chairman. But there came the first unfortunate turn.

Kennedy wanted O'Brien for another critical job, top White House man for congressional liaison work—potential key to winning passage of presidentially sponsored legislation. Dutifully, O'Brien took on the task and performed supremely well, continuing there at the same high level for two years under President Johnson.

The national chairmanship at the outset went to John Bailey, simply as a reward for his early attachment to Kennedy's cause and his labors in locking up New England's 114 delegate votes, roughly a seventh of the number Kennedy needed for nomination.

O'Brien never relished the liaison job, but he abandoned thought of the chairmanship, despite repeated rumors he would get it.

Johnson talked O'Brien into serving longer as liaison man than he wanted to. Then, when he was about to leave, the President stunned him by naming him postmaster general.

He was always a key political adviser to Johnson. His services in 1966 were legion. Yet even after the Democratic disaster that fall, and the heavy clamor to have O'Brien replace Bailey, Johnson would not shift his most reliable political aide to that post.

Had Johnson run again in 1968, O'Brien would ultimately have been his campaign manager. But the President's withdrawal and the late Robert Kennedy's entry into the race freed him at last to get back more openly into politics.

Suspicion always existed in some party quarters that Johnson hung back from naming O'Brien national chairman because he feared that in that somewhat more independent role his earlier Kennedy associations would rise to fresh prominence and disadvantage Johnson.

The tragedy of Robert Kennedy's death brought O'Brien into Humphrey's camp after strong pleas from the vice president. His commitment to Humphrey, however, was intended to end in Chicago in August.

But the combination of friendship for the vice president, deep loyalty to the party, and a scribbled note from his wife around 4 a.m. telling him to go ahead, persuaded O'Brien to take the national chairmanship through the campaign and a little beyond.

Strong pressures on him to stay developed predictably but were foredoomed to failure. O'Brien was eager for more lucrative work.

Nevertheless, he might have stayed. Politics is his life. Yet a party which for more than eight years has tolerated its own decay and regularly starved itself financially at the organizational level could not make out a convincing case to him with vague promises.

So, for awhile at least, the Democrats lose O'Brien, who could have been the best chairman in their history, who at all times has made politics the honorable pursuit it can be, and gained himself an army of friends among politicians and their skeptical observers

There were plenty of chances for decision on today's hand. West and North had no problems at first. Both passed.

East might also have passed or he might have opened with one heart. Instead he decided to make things difficult for the man with the spade suit and opened three hearts.

This bid didn't keep South from naming spades but it gave him a problem. Should he bid three or four spades? Finally South decided that he would be cold for four if his partner held trump support and a side trick, so South jumped to game.

West really did not have enough to go to five hearts after his partner's pre-empt but West was a pretty smart player and felt certain that a five-heart bid would not be doubled so he got into the act with five hearts.

Now North felt that he had so much strength that a five-spade bid was clearly indicated. He bid five spades and it was up to South to try to make it.

West opened the ace of hearts and continued the suit. South ruffed and drew trumps. Then he led the six of clubs!

The first few plays had been made rapidly and West's play of the eight of clubs came just as quickly.

The next play took a lot of time. South couldn't lose the hand if West held both the ace and queen, he couldn't make it if East held these cards. If they were divided, it was up to South to decide which player held which card. It is no problem for us. We see the cards, but it was quite a problem for South.

As a matter of fact he studied so long that we went away and still don't know if he guessed right or wrong!

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What year in American history is known as "the year in which there was no summer"?

A—1816, in which frost and snow occurred in June and throughout the summer months in New England.

Q—Can octopi swim?

A—They only swim when they must or if on migration. Then they swim backwards in a series of jerks employing the same method of jet propulsion used by the squid.

Q—Does Great Britain have any colonies in Central America?

BETTY CANARY

If Winter Comes, Enjoy!

By BETTY CANARY

I made my decision while raking leaves last fall. When the snows came, I'd be ready for them.

I don't mean I'd have a bag of salt ready for the steps or the snow tires on. After all, one doesn't change one's entire way of living in an instant.

My decision was to see this winter's weather the way the poets do.

You know what I mean. The icicles would no longer be just icicles. By my eye they would be transformed into sparkling stalactites in winter's cave.

And, I'd look at the huge old cherry tree outside my bedroom window and not worry about that branch—the one I'm sure will come crashing through the roof with every storm. No, I'd gaze serenely at its black branches and notice only soft white puffs of snow clinging to them, the way Katherine Mansfield would do, and, like her, I'd see cuddly snow puppies.

Back then, with the yellow sun and the crispy leaves and the tangy air of autumn, I could see myself merrily whistling my way through the ice of January.

If we went away for a weekend the way we did last winter, I told myself as I leaned on the rake, and we came home to discover an outside faucet hadn't been turned off and frozen pipes had burst and flooded our yard and the street, why, I wouldn't chastise my children. Never cry over spilt milk or 40,000 gallons of water, I would say cheerfully to them. Yes, I'd minimize the damage and help my children see the magic. "Look! Our own skating pond!" That's what their mother turned poetess would say.

Oh, I could hardly wait! Heretofore I had only read one poem about winter that seemed to come close to my way of thinking about it. Somewhere somebody said:

"The Snow, the snow!
Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh!"

and that said it for me.

But, I knew that I could bring myself to see winter as most poets see it. At night I would see banks of white under a black velvet canopy of sky. At dawn I would see mounds of glittering diamonds brought to life by the rising sun.

The WONDER of it all. That's what I'd see!

And, I still intend to see it. I may even write my very own poem about it. I'm going to do it just as soon as I get this load of snow pants and mittens into the dryer and right after I get the pipes thawed under the kitchen sink so I can get water to mop up the puddles in the back hall where all those boots are dripping.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Don't Judge Character By Shape of One's Jaw

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Too often, people are judged by the shape of their jaws. At first meeting, people with protruding or retruding jaws often trigger in our minds an automatic appraisal of their character.

We're clearly conditioned to believe that heavy, square jaws are associated with strong, tough, rugged, he-man-leader types, brimming with power, incapable of being brainwashed.

Receding chin, bird face, protruding upper teeth, are likely to conjure weak-kneed, lily-livered, easily led, morally weak, nice-guy-but types.

In women, delicate, oval jaws suggest feminine, submissive, sexy gals. Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis has a square jaw.

Comic strips reflect our glorification of the big jaw types. Heroes have square, prominent jaws with definite cleft. Dick Tracy, the super cop; Popeye, the spinach-eating savior of weak-chinned Olive Oil; Mammy Yokum, who can lick her weight in bearcats — all have jaws that indicate determination and guts, and winner-leader types.

Probably influenced by this reaction to jaw shapes, many parents seek orthodontic treatment for their kids or give them what an imperfect genetic combination failed to give them — a perfect chin — a rare genetic trick only realized by a small percentage of people.

But heredity components which produce under- or overdeveloped jaws can't be manipulated, and are little influenced by orthodontic treatment. This should not be confused with malocclusion of teeth, which can be successfully treated.

Character judgments based on the shape of jaws are misleading, to say the least, yet American society lives by them and rarely stops to think how silly and unfair it all is.

Riboflavin? We EAT It?

Do you like plenty of riboflavin and ascorbic acid for breakfast?

And clap your hands in glee when you see thiamine on the dinner table?

Good! You're eating properly and may grow up to be Miss America or an all-American.

Provided, of course, you're also getting enough protein, calcium, iron and Vitamin A.

Those are the seven nutrients dietary experts say we must have in our food.

But, the experts report sadly, many of us aren't getting enough of them to make us as healthy as we should be.

O.K. So maybe we can't afford such fancy stuff.

No excuse. That isn't fancy stuff. It's just vitamins and things that are available in wholesome food that can be bought at reasonable prices. Milk, lettuce, citrus fruits, meat, eggs, for example.

Besides, say the experts, too often diet isn't a matter of income at all. Many people who can afford anything they want aren't eating properly.

They aren't? Say, it's sort of comforting, isn't it, to know that some of us who have to watch our grocery bills are eating just as improperly as the rich folks.

It may not help our health, but think what it does to our ego!

McCowen Has a Role Now That's Close to Himself

NEW YORK (AP) — Coming to Broadway in the great triumph of his theater career has special meaning for Alec McCowen.

"The first time I saw acting of real quality was in New York," says the English star, calmly contradicting the bromidic consensus which insists British players are best.

"I've been greatly influenced by American acting and directing, for which I'm very grateful," he goes on, "and I think the influence of that style back home has been much more than is generally acknowledged."

Any McCowen debt of creative impetus is being repaid with interest in "Hadiran VII," the London drama sensation which has just arrived at the Helen Hayes Theater.

"I think," he mused shortly before the premiere, "that this opening night is a little harder because we've got to live up to all that advance praise."

The play, about a man rejected for the priesthood who becomes pope, opened with a set of unanimous in-advance raves from the procession of New York critics who saw the piece abroad.

"I've never been knocked off balance by all the cheers," McCowen remarks, "because I've been working pretty steadily for 25 years."

Diffident, quietly droll in outlook, the slender man of 43 from Tunbridge Wells long since has gotten inured to being periodically "discovered" on stage, screen and TV.

Luke based "Hadrian VII" on the works of Frederick William Rolfe, alias Baron Corvo, a minor early 20th century English exotic who used his own life for fictional fantasies.

"I was astonished with the London success," admits McCowen, who picked the project to flex his own creative range during a Birmingham run, but thought it would have "very limited appeal."

Now blessed with hindsight, he says: "What it really does is offer universal appeal. Cinderella goes to the ball; Hadrian goes to the Vatican — everyone can identify with that achieving of a dearest wish."

"I don't do a play to show off in a leading part," he asserts. "Basically, I do a play if it has a lot of nerve about it, if it makes me laugh. It doesn't have to be comedy, but a play has to say something, have a quality of outrage — that's what theater should always be, not life as most of us mundane creatures lead it.

"As far as this particular character is concerned, Hadrian suits me very well, because it comes closer to my own self than anything else I've done. I respect, too, in it the sense of humor that I'd like to have and the gift of language that I'd like to have."

"What more could an actor want, than stage center, dressed in white, with everyone kissing his hand?"

En route to assuming the triple tiara, McCowen, a man "without strong religious leanings," has variously enacted a priest in "The Deputy," a bishop in "The Agony and the Ecstasy," an ambiguous deity in "After the Rain" and "just to give the other side a chance," a stern Protestant reformer in "Luther."

McCowen, from the time he was 16, knew that acting was his purpose in life, which he attributes partly to heredity — his mother had been a professional dancer and his grandsires were a preacher and a politician — and partly to the environmental influence of devoted movie-going every Saturday.

"There's no other theater in the family. I have a sister, Jean, who concentrates on having lots of children."

After what he maintains was a totally undistinguished stay at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, he set off on the traditional English apprenticeship circuit of repertory companies in such spots as Macclesfield, Rhyl, Llanduno, Pengo Bromley, High Wycombe — and finally St. John's, Newfoundland.

"My father told me I could go along for that 12-week visit with the Birmingham Rep if I saved all my salary for a visit to New York. "I'm very grateful for that 1948 experience because I did get to New York and the first play I saw was a matinee of "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"I immediately got standing room for the very next performance." The cast included Marlon Brando, Jessica Tandy and Karl Malden.

"It was the finest acting I'd ever seen, of a kind I'd never seen. I grew up in the theater at a time when English acting was very smug — brittle, clean, but with no depth. English actors are given more opportunity to have more training variety than Americans — because there are more companies at work — and to develop a perhaps enviable technique in clarity. But to combine that ability with the energy and reality of American actors is a very good thing."

His current trip is McCowen's fourth working expedition to these shores. Previous visitations were with the Oliviers, the Royal Shakespeare Company "King Lear" tour headed by Paul Scofield, and just a year ago in "After the Rain."

His oddest stay was in 1956, following a hit run in London with Sam Levene and Ruth Gordon in "The Matchmaker." McCowen was dragooned into coming to New York to replace Robert Morse. But Equity intervened after just two road performances.

"When I saw Morse do the part, I thought he was better than I ever had been," he says, "and of course Morse was the only member of the stage cast who also made the movie."

Alec McCowen believes that "Hadrian VII," in which he is now starring in New York, offers universal appeal. Everyone can identify with a desire to be Cinderella going to the ball — or, in this case, Hadrian going to the Vatican.

Mercy Mission to Biafra Sets Sail From New York

NEW YORK (AP)—The snappy little mercy ship Forra sailed out of Brooklyn Monday night, crammed with a fluoroscope, vitamin pills, rice and all of the things the small people of a rich land donated for starving Biafrans.

One estimate put the value of the cargo at $250,000, but no one really was counting.

"There never has been such an outpouring," said Richard Weston, a Biafra Christmas Ship Committee aide.

The International Longshoremen's Association, on strike for three weeks, put its men to work loading the ship.

"They allowed volunteers on the pier to unload the trucks. The carpenters crated a fluoroscope some doctor donated. Everybody on the waterfront has gone out of their way. It's the first time I've seen anything like this," said Edward F. Curley, vice president of the Kerr Steamship Co., which handled the Forra without charge.

Boy Scouts, teen-agers, old women on crutches and young people worked around the clock packing contributions so the ship could sail on time.

The International Rescue Committee collected $60,000 worth of drugs and equipment —antibiotics, vitamins, bandages, x-ray machines—and $90,000 worth of high-protein food—rice, cornmeal, beans, canned meat and fish.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon wife of the president-elect, appeared on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral Saturday to take part in the appeal.

A spokesman for the Biafra Relief Services Foundation said that about $30,000 cash has been contributed "and the mail still is running heavy." The funds will be used to pay for additional loadings at Newport News, Va., and for the airlift between Sao Tome, an island off the coast of Africa.

Over 400 tons of food and medicine were collected in England and loaded aboard the vessel enroute to New York.

WARDS RIVERSIDE 4-SQUARE PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE

GUARANTEED AGAINST FAILURE due to road hazards (except repairable punctures) or from defects in materials or workmanship for the life of the original tread. In case of failure, Wards will exchange tire for a new one, charging only that portion of the current price (plus Federal Excise Tax) equivalent to the percent used.

GUARANTEED AGAINST TREAD WEAROUT for months specified. In case tread wears out, Wards will exchange tire for a new one, charging only the difference between the current price (plus Federal Excise Tax) and a specific dollar allowance. (Tread wear guarantee does not apply to tires used commercially.)

Only 1 Week to Save!

2 fiber glass belts lay tread down flatter on the road – reduces squirming, tire wears longer! 2 nylon cord cross plies add stability, give superior resistance to heat build-up, flex-fatigue, impact. 30-month tread wear, and lifetime quality and road hazard guarantee.

The tire the experts asked for:

"Looking at our results, it is easy to see why radial ply tires are so appealing. But the more we look, the more we feel that all the advantages are a result of the belt, which stabilizes the tread, and not the radial plies themselves. In fact, the areas where the radial tires show signs of weakness can be related to the radial plies – not the belt. We can't help but think that a combination tire – a cross ply with a belt – would be an admirable solution."

HONG KONG FLU

Hong Kong Flu, an entirely new strain of A-2 flu virus, is now hitting many parts of the country and is expected to be epidemic by mid-winter.

Although vaccines previously available won't help much against the new flu, pharmaceutical companies are working around the clock to produce enough new vaccine, effective against the Hong Kong flu.

If you are over 60 or have trouble with your heart or breathing, public health authorities urge that you have your doctor innoculate you with the new vaccine.

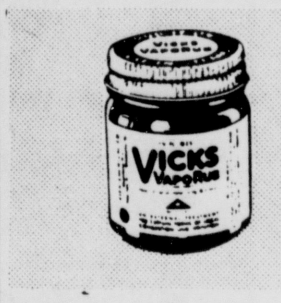

See your doctor if you need protection and get your shots just as soon as the vaccine is available.

WHEN FLU STRIKES, SEE YOUR DOCTOR FIRST...
THEN YOUR Katz PHARMACIST,
THE MAN WHO IS ALWAYS THERE WHEN YOU NEED HIM...
